Market Development Urged For Soybean Industry

By STAFF WRITER
PORTAGEVILLE - "The number one problem of the soybean industry is market development," Harris H. Barnes of Clarksdale, Miss., president of the American Soybean Association, said Wednesday night.

Barnes spoke at a dinner meeting at the University of Missouri Delta Center marking the release of a report of the Southeast Missouri Soybean Association study committee. About 300 attended.

The industry needs to set aside money for promotion of soybeans, as the cotton industry does with its $1 a bale for promotion, he said.

He called for more research into the uses of soybeans, pointing out that less money is spent for research on the soybean than for any other major crop.

The soybean oil industry must improve to meet the competition of the sunflower oil industry in the world market, Barnes said. He urged the industry to cultivate markets in the developing nations, biggest potential market for soybean products.

Dr. John C. Weaver, Columbia, president of the University of Missouri, spoke on the challenge facing the university. He said the university has taken an interest in soybeans, cotton, sugar beets and irrigation research in the Delta area.

"We are anxious to do an increasingly effective job," he continued. He said the quality of the university depended upon the quality the residents of the state demanded. He noted that Delta area residents have a good

Ground Broken for First Plant In New Madrid Industrial Park

By WARREN SOKOLIS
NEW MADRID - Ground was broken Wednesday to mark the start of construction of a $6 million wire and rod mill, the first project of the Noranda Aluminum Inc. complex to be built here.

Turning over the first spadeful of dirt were Alfred Powis, president and chief executive officer, Noranda Mines Ltd., Toronto; L. G. Lumbers, president, Noranda Manufacturing Ltd., Toronto; Mayor Robert Riley and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The plant will be in the St. Jude industrial park seven miles south of here.

The mill will employ 100. It is scheduled to begin production in May of 1969.

Noranda also has announced plans for a $70 million aluminum reduction plant, and the city of New Madrid will build a $70 million 580,000

It has been called the largest single industrial acquisition in Missouri's history.

In remarks at the groundbreaking ceremonies Powis said the Noranda industry will employ about 700 with an annual payroll of more than $5 million.

In addition, the industry is expected to create up to 500 new jobs in service-connected business.

In tracing the history of Noranda's decision to locate here, Powis noted that the company was about to pick another site when it was contacted by New Madrid city officials 18 months ago.

Noranda officials decided to investigate the New Madrid facilities before making the selection, he said. Powis pointed out that the city had many obstacles which had to be overcome before Noranda just the beginning of a major officials were convinced that change in Missouri.

New Madrid would be the best place to locate.

Noranda needed access to a site with water and rail "Our land is rich not only for transportation, power facilities farming, but in its content of metallic ores. We are located as a crossroads state for the nation, with excellent transportation facilities."

He praised city and state officials for their determination that obstacles could be overcome.

Other fields of production of Noranda and its subsidiaries include copper, silver, potash, pulp and lumber. The New Madrid facility is Noranda's first venture into aluminum.

Noranda firms employ 23,000 in 10 countries.

"We at Noranda are delighted to be locating in this area," Powis said. "Thank you very much for having us here."

Governor Hearnes said the intended to be a good corporate location of Noranda "may be citizen of the state."

U.S. Troops Abandon Hard To Hold Khe Sanh Base

SAIGON (AP) - U.S. troops are abandoning and leveling the Khe Sanh combat base, freeing its defenders to join mobile strike forces combating increased enemy forces in South Vietnam's northernmost provinces.

The U.S. Command said abandonment of the base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam where U.S. Marines took more than 2,300 casualties in a 77-day siege last winter "is part of a new concept of mobile warfare being put into operation" below the demilitarized zone, said Brig. Gen. Winant Sidle, chief of information for the U.S. Command.

"Khe Sanh will be leveled, bulldozed and the bunkers closed up," said Sidle. "It's already under way."

On the ground, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 125 enemy troops in a running battle east of Quang Tri City and 19 miles below the demilitarized zone. Government casualties were put at seven killed and 50 wounded.

South Vietnamese infantrymen also uncovered a huge cache of weapons 12 miles west-northwest of Saigon that included 126 rounds of big Russian and Chinese rockets of the type that have been used in shelling the capital.

In the air war, over North Vietnam, the U.S. Command reported that Navy F8 Crusader pilots sighted two Communist MIGs 12 miles south of the 19th parallel Wednesday and downed one with air-to-air missiles.

It was the first MIG shot down since Feb. 14 and the first since President Johnson ordered a bombing curtailment March 31, limiting American pilots to targets below the 19th parallel.

U.S. pilots now are credited with downing 106 MIGs in aerial combat compared to 47 U.S. planes lost to the MIGs.

U.S. headquarters also reported that on Tuesday Navy pilots spotted three MIGs northeast of the coastal city of Vinh and fired on them. The MIGs headed north above the 19th parallel, apparently undamaged.

In its weekly casualty report issued today, the U.S. Command said the number of Americans killed in action last week—299—was the lowest in two months. It said 2,220 Americans were wounded.

Shifting Opinion Clouds Gun Control Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Shifting public opinion, a delayed vote and President Johnson's sudden call for stricter firearms laws have brought the gun control controversy to a critical stage in Congress.

A bill to ban the mail order sale of all weapons, including rifles and shotguns, was before the Senate Judiciary Committee today for a vote originally scheduled a week ago.

A majority of committee members favored the measure then as the public outcry over Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination crested, but developments since have clouded the issue.

Johnson pushed after the assassination for the ban on rifles and shotguns, then asked Congress in the past week to also enact legislation requiring registration of all guns and licensing of their owners.

Some gun control hawks want to tack that request onto the rifle-shotgun bill.

But public opinion has shifted dramatically, with congressmen now saying their mail is running heavily against stiffer control laws, particularly those requiring registration.

As the administration pushed its case Wednesday in a hearing before the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, the registration measure got a cool reception in the House.

At the same time, Chairman William M. Colmer, D-Miss., of the House Rules Committee

rebuffed attempts to get the mail order bill to a House vote before the July 4 recess by scheduling a hearing to clear the measure for floor action the day before the recess starts.

Other awards Lt. Sisler had won were: bronze star, purple heart, combat infantryman's badge, Vietnam service medal, national defense medal, gallantry cross with palm and the national order medal of 5th class from the Vietnamese government. He also was honored at Arkansas State University by his fraternity which established the Lt. Ken Sisler outstanding athlete award to honor him in Jonesboro.

As a result of his example, his force was able to hold off the enemy and call in air strikes that disrupted the attack.

The Medal of Honor may be earned in only one way: By a deed of personal bravery or self-sacrifice above and beyond the call of duty. A letter from his commanding officer explains the circumstances under which he died. "Ken gave his life in the defense of an oppressed people and for a cause in which he believed."

The Medal has been awarded only about 2,200 times since its beginning during the Civil War.

Medal of Honor Hero Blunted Assault

WASHINGTON AP - The 39th medal of honor of the Vietnam war was awarded today to a soldier who died after single-handedly blunting an enemy assault on his platoon.

The citation honors Army 1st Lt. George K. Sisler, 30, for heroism in combat on Feb. 7, 1967.

His widow, Mrs. Jane B. Sisler of Dexter, Mo., received the medal from Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor in ceremonies at the Pentagon.

Sisler was leader of a special U. S. - Vietnamese exploitation unit which was attacked from three sides by a company-sized force while operating deep within enemy-dominated territory.

"Charging through intense enemy fire to rescue two volunteers to take a platoon on wounded men, he killed three onrushing enemy," the citation says of Sisler.

"As the left flank of his position came under extremely heavy attack, several additional men of his platoon were quickly wounded."

"Lt. Sisler charged single-handedly into the enemy onslaught firing his weapon and throwing grenades. This heroic action broke up the assault and forced the enemy to begin withdrawing."

"As Lt. Sisler was moving about the battlefield directing air strikes upon the fleeing force, he fell mortally wounded."

Lieutenant Sisler was in army intelligence and attached to the special forces (green beret). He volunteered to take a platoon on a reconnaissance mission into an area known to contain North Vietnamese troops. He rallied his men and with tremendous determination defended his position.

As a result of his example, his force was able to hold off the enemy and call in air strikes that disrupted the attack.

The Medal of Honor may be earned in only one way: By a deed of personal bravery or self-sacrifice above and beyond the call of duty. A letter from his commanding officer explains the circumstances under which he died. "Ken gave his life in the defense of an oppressed people and for a cause in which he believed."

The Medal has been awarded only about 2,200 times since its beginning during the Civil War.

Lt. Sisler and Private Billie Keall of Poplar Bluff are the only two men known to have received the medal of honor in Southeast Missouri.

One officer said of Lt. Sisler: "Ken had a very high, very real sense of duty. To Ken it was a way of life. He lived it and he was right."

Other awards Lt. Sisler had won were: bronze star, purple heart, combat infantryman's badge, Vietnam service medal, national defense medal, gallantry cross with palm and the national order medal of 5th class from the Vietnamese government. He also was honored at Arkansas State University by his fraternity which established the Lt. Ken Sisler outstanding athlete award to honor him in Jonesboro.

Former Arkansas State University linebacking star Marvin Hagaman has been hired as defensive line coach at ASU, announced J.A. "The" Tomlinson Friday.

Hagaman, a 1962 graduate, will replace Wayne Armstrong who gave up his post to return to graduate school to work on a doctorate.

Hagaman, who was a three-year letterman for the Indians, was athletic director and football coach at Stuttgart, Ark., this past year. A native of Stuttgart, he was a graduate assistant coach at A-State in 1966. He received his master's degree from ASU in 1967.

He was an assistant football coach and head track coach at Jonesboro High School in 1965-66. Prior to that he was in the Army, stationed in Hawaii.

As a 175-pound offensive guard-linebacker Hagaman starred for the Indians in 1959, 1960 and 1961. While at ASU he was president of the A Club, senior class president, Student Government Association representative and a member of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. He was also active in Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Indian Coach Bennie Ellender said of Hagaman's addition to his staff, "We are most happy to have Marvin on our staff and we feel that he will be a credit to our program."

Marvin is married to the former Mary Mahfouz, who was graduated from A-State in 1963. They have two children, Patricia Ann, 4, and Michael Scott, 2.

There will be something different about the upcoming All-Star baseball game. It will be played indoors, to a sellout crowd in the 45,000 seat Houston Astrodome. And also for the first time it will be held at night. The date is July 9.

This game, the 39th in the series between the stars of the National and American leagues, will also see in attendance for the first time officials of 24 major league teams, four of which are expansion clubs—San Diego, Seattle, Kansas City and Montreal.

With baseball spreading its talent at the top, next year may find these new teams represented in the 1969 game by players who never expected to gain All-Star status in the good old days of eight team leagues.

Bob Gibson likes to keep things in their proper perspective. Like for instance winning. That comes first.

So while questions about his five consecutive shutouts get out of hand, Gibson keeps everything under control—his fastball, his curve, even his irritation over record-rabid sports writers.

The St. Louis Cardinals' right-hander spun his fifth shutout in a row for a 3-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a doubleheader.

Gibson shrugs off the talk about his chances of beating Don Drysdale's newly set record of six straight shutouts and 58 2-3 scoreless innings. Gibson has 47 consecutive scoreless innings.

"Macht nichts," Gibson said in German to show his lack of concern over shutouts. "It doesn't make any difference. I thought about a shutout in the sixth or seventh inning, but of course the first thing you think about is getting runs. The shutout is secondary."

The nine-game winner got his runs in the first, fourth and eighth innings. Gibson even doubled in the fourth to help build a run.

"You can get yourself preoccupied with shutouts and pretty soon you find yourself behind," Gibson warned. "But I think anybody thinks about a shutout in the sixth or seventh if he's pitching good."

Then he laughed, "The very first thing you think about is a no-hitter."

Gibson gave up four hits. But nobody made it as far as second. And Gibson didn't walk a man in his sixth straight victory. That, he feels, is the important thing about his excellent pitching this year.

"I had good control during the whole streak," Gibson said. "In fact, I've had better control this whole year."

Gibson's next start probably will be Monday against record-holding Drysdale.

Is Gibson looking forward to it?

"I'm not looking forward to a shutout," Gibson smiled. "I'm looking forward to a win. I only pitched once against him this year and he beat me 1-0."

But the hard thing for Gibson to do is convince people he isn't chasing records.

"I really don't care about it," Gibson declared. "If you set a record fine, but I don't care."

Standouts Battle Friday

ATLANTA (AP) — Last fall's college football standouts battle Friday night in the eighth annual Coaches All-America game which either kicks off the 1968 season or wraps up the 1967 campaign.

The nationally televised duel matches quarterback Gary Beban of UCLA, the heralded Heisman Trophy winner, against Greg Landry of Massachusetts.

Beban, who has been erratic in practice, will direct the West while Landry will quarterback the East.

West Coach Dee Andros of Oregon and East Coach John Pont of Indiana both have predicted an explosive game, although last year's scrap ended in a 12-9 conquest for the East.

This year's game may be another low-scoring show, with both teams boasting top defensive players.

The East's defense will be led by tackle Kevin Hardy of Notre Dame, tackle Claude Humphrey of Tennessee A.I., linebacker D. D. Lewis of Mississippi State and halfback Frank Loria of Virginia Tech.

Heading up the West's defense will be tackle Wayne Meyland of Nebraska, guard Granville Liggins of Oklahoma, linebacker Fred Carr of Texas El Paso and halfback Dick Anderson of Colorado.

The West, which trails in the series 4-3, has some offensive standouts including pass-catching whiz Rick Eber of Tulsa, explosive halfback Max Anderson of Arizona State and long-range kicker Jerry De Poyster of Wyoming.

Andros admitted, however, that he doesn't have a

Gibson's Shutout Mark to 47 Innings

Momentum will be in Bob Gibson's corner when the St. Louis Cardinals' right-hander resumes his pursuit of Don Drysdale ... and collides head-on with Mr. Zero himself.

Gibson reeled off his fifth straight shutout ... one short of the major league record set earlier this month by Los Angeles' Drysdale ... with a four-hit 3-0 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday night.

But Drysdale, whose shutout string ran out about the same time Gibson started picking up steam, proved he hasn't lost his magic by hurling 7 2-3 hitless innings on the way to his 200th career victory, a two-hit 2-1 nod over San Francisco.

Drysdale, who holds the all-time mark of 58 2-3 consecutive scoreless innings, and Gibson, with a string of 47 blanks intact, are due to oppose each other next Monday night at Los Angeles.

The Pirates rebounded from their loss to Gibson and trimmed the National League leading Cardinals 3-1 in the nightcap.

Cincinnati shaded the New York Mets 7-6, Houston nipped the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and Philadelphia slipped past Atlanta 3-2 in 11 innings.

Baltimore topped Boston 6-2, Washington upended Cleveland 8-2 and Oakland beat California 3-0 in American League play. Detroit was rained the victory with a clutch relief job in the ninth.

Dave Marshall's pinch single with two out in the eighth deprived Drysdale, 10-4, of both a no-hitter and a shutout after the Dodger ace dug himself into a hole with a walk and a throwing error. Jim Hart's two-out single in the ninth was the only other San Francisco hit.

The Dodgers gave Drysdale the support he needed in the doubleheader, when Wes Parker doubled, scored one run and Hart threw a wide to the plate for another.

REPEATED PREGNANCIES DANGER TO HEALTH SAN ANTONIO, TEX. (WMNS) - Why do health experts consider family planning an important ingredient in maternal and child health care? Here's the answer.

Dr. Arthur Lesser, deputy chief of the Children's Bureau gave to Women's Medical News Service at a recent medical meeting here:

"Studies have shown that repeated child bearing impairs the health of women and does not lead to healthy children," the physician explained.

"We know that the highest birth rate is among the poor - and so is the highest infant mortality rate. We know that two-thirds of all babies who die in their first year die of complications associated with prematurity."

"Repeated studies have shown," Dr. Lesser noted, "that women with a history of giving birth prematurely, or who have

Celebrates Fifth

Birthday at Party

Victoria Byrd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Joe Byrd of Miner, celebrated her fifth birthday Monday at Angel Day nursery.

The children sang "Happy Birthday" as she blew out the candles on her cake.

Present were Junior Bickford, Michael Lee, Kevin and Libby Boyer, Nick Garner, Karen Happe, Buzz and John Ferrell, Steve and Michelle Johnston and Mickey Moyer.

Favors were candy and bubble gum.

Why do people do what they do,

What evilness lurks in their minds.

How can it be, that they throw out the good,

And take the insanity left behind.

The night was good, the victory won, No one knew what was to be. And then eight shots one after one,

Wounded Senator Kennedy.

The doctors tried to save his life.

They worked two nights and a day.

But with all they could do, and try as they did,

They still had to wait, and pray.

And then in the night it happened,

The time was after three.

The Good Lord came and took with him,

Senator Bobby Kennedy.

Why did this happen to such a good man,

And such a good man was he. I say these words with all of my heart:

God Bless Bobby Kennedy.

GOP Leaders Adopt Pledge Of Harmony

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Missouri Republican leaders joined together in a harmony pledge regardless of any differences that may result at their state convention in Kansas City Saturday.

The statement came from State Chairman Dorman Steelman of Salem, Gene Taylor of Sarcoxie, national committeeman, and Mrs. Rosemary Ginn of Columbia, national committeewoman. They mentioned recent news stories pointing to a split over choice of four delegates at large to the Republican National Convention. Steelman is on one side in that battle and Taylor and Mrs. Ginn on the other.

Today they said any contests at the state convention will not deter them from a unified effort to elect Republicans in November.

"We would like to emphasize," they said, "that our state convention will be conducted in a fair and impartial manner and once the delegates have made their choices, we pledge that we will without reservation accept their decision and march forward together in an all out effort to produce a victory, not only for the Republican party, but in a larger sense for the people of this state and nation."

The GOP leaders said they have an outstanding ticket in Missouri which has attracted great enthusiasm from the public.

They did not refer specifically to the delegate fight. Twenty of Missouri's 24 delegates already have been selected at district conventions and most of them are regarded as Nixon supporters.

RUSSIA CLOSES MISSILE GAP
When it became evident a generation ago that there were many Communists in top circles of our government, action should have been taken immediately to remove them. Those who insisted upon doing so, however, were regarded as extremists. The view prevailed that our country was so safe and our freedom and our form of government so secure that a few Communists could be tolerated.

When we developed the atom bomb twenty-three years ago, it should have been regarded as a top secret. However, there were enough Communists and Communist sympathizers in our government to transmit full information about the making of these bombs and material with which to make them to the Soviet Union. This story has been told and retold for more than twenty years and has never been denied. Again it was said that our country is so far advanced scientifically and the Communists are so undeveloped in that respect, that they can never catch up and we will not be endangered by allowing them to have strategic information.

When the Kremlin Tyrants exploded their first bomb, the American people gave little heed and we heard such remarks as, "It will take twenty years for them to rival our strength." I was shocked when I heard that remark. Suppose it would take twenty years—what then? Do we relish Soviet domination any more now than we did twenty years ago? Now the twenty years has rolled around and the headline in the paper before me announces, "U. S. SEES SOVIET CLOSING GAP ON STRATEGIC MISSILES." The opening line in the article, with a Washington

If You Were the Judge

State College Can Offer Bible Course

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

A state supported college offered a literature course on the Bible. Commencing with a man and a woman in a garden, it was to end with Revelations. It never however got that far. Almost before the course could begin, several ministers hurried to court where they demanded that the course be ordered discontinued.

"A state supported college cannot give a course on the Bible," they argued. "It violates the Constitutional prohibition against using public funds in support of religion."

"Nonsense," responded a college official. "We're not teaching religion. We're teaching literature. We're taking the Bible and looking at it objectively. While the Bible may suggest that men have made monkeys of themselves and while science may suggest that monkeys have made men of themselves, we're not concerned with either approach. We're only concerned with the Bible as a book."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the state supported college to stop giving its Bible course?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a state supported college is not prohibited by the Constitution from giving a literature course on the Bible which is taught objectively, has no effect on religious beliefs, is not slanted toward any particular theological point of view, and does not indoctrinate anyone. To study the literary features of the Bible, concluded the judge, violates no constitutional prohibitions.

DEPARTMENT STARTS "NEW LOOK"

MOWING ALONG STATE HIGHWAYS

How would you like to mow a lawn 32,000 miles long?

That's enough grassy miles to circle the globe—and then some. And that's the size of the mowing job now facing the Missouri State Highway Department.

Obviously, this is no weekend job. It requires men—some 1130 of them; machines—1130 of them, ranging from small mowers to gang mowers up to about 15 feet wide; and standards—to insure uniform appearance.

Most weekend mowers "rev dateline, reads: "Solid evidence now in the hands of top administration officials indicates that the Soviet Union is close to pulling even with the United States in land-based, strategic missiles."

That is no surprise. Many of us have been warning year after year that this was in the process of happening.

up" their rotaries for just one reason—to manicure their lawns. The Highway Department's job isn't that simple. Its purpose is threefold—to make highways safer by keeping down obstacles to visibility, to control roadside erosion which might result in high-cost repairs to highways, and to enhance the beauty of Missouri's roadsides.

Highway department maintenance crews formerly mowed all right of ways twice a year.

"Now we will now when and where as needed," explained Leland D. Fletcher, the Department's maintenance and traffic engineer. "There will be more mowing in some areas and less mowing in others, depending upon the location and type of ground cover."

All sight distance areas, such as inside of curves in the vicinity of approaches, and around signs, will be mowed as often as necessary to maintain good visibility for safety. Abrupt changes in widths will be avoided by contour mowing at transition points.

"What should result," said Fletcher, "is mowing which will heighten the beauty of right ways by blending them in more naturally with surrounding areas."

The Department's "new look" mowing also calls for other changes. These include time-consuming work, mowing is limited on mowing of steep slopes, more intensive mowing in urban and developed areas, and the procedures for mowing after the Department last year spent $3,032,985 on mowing.

"Our mowing operations," said Fletcher, "will be coordinated with an effective herbicide and fertilizing program. The use of herbicides and fertilizer will help reduce the mowing required to keep vegetation to a desirable height, eliminate objectionable growth and improve the quality of desirable grasses."

In addition to being time-consuming work, mowing is one of the Department's costlier operations. According to Fletcher, the Department last year spent dishwashers are the only ones settings not only for rinsing, who think the dishes must washing and drying but also for undergo such preparations as washing everything from heavy "pre-rinsing" before being put pots and pans to delicate china into the dishwasher. Simple and stemware. About 10 scraping of leftovers is enough. million women now own And the modern dishwasher has dishwashers, the Bureau notes.

Males, 5-19, Have Most Poisonous Snake Bites

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Males between the ages five and 19 have the highest rates of poisonous snake bites, according to studies by Dr. Henry M. Parrish, professor of community health and medical practice at the University of Missouri school of medicine.

The snake bite season, which began in April, will reach its peak in July and August and taper off in September. These are the months people are more active outdoors and also when snakes are more active. These facts are taken from the writings of Dr. Parrish and co-authors on poisonous snakes found in the United States. Dr. Parrish is author of 150 papers on poisonous snake bites published in various medical and scientific journals.

Dr. Parrish conducted a national survey of venomous snake bites including all states except Alaska and Hawaii which have no native poisonous snakes. He estimates that 6,680 persons are snake bitten annually in the United States but only 15 fatally. The World Health Organization has estimated that throughout the world 30,000 to 40,000 people die annually.

Only about 10 per cent of the snakes native to the United States are venomous. These are all of the pit viper family except the coral snake.

The pit vipers, which are responsible for 99 per cent of all poisonous snakebites in the United States, are rattlesnakes, cottonmouths and copperheads. A poisonous pit viper is so called because of a deep pit located between the eye and nostril. With close observation one can distinguish elliptical pupils and two well-developed fangs which protrude from the upper jaw when the mouth is open.

Harmless snakes do not have facial pits or fangs but have teeth and round pupils. The coral snake is the only U.S. coral snake that has round pupils and lacks facial pits.

States having the highest poisonous bite rates per 100,000 population are, in order, North Carolina, Arkansas, Texas, Georgia, West Virginia, Mississippi, Louisiana and Oklahoma. North eastern states have a fewest reported bites--Minnesota, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Rhode Island and New York.

Rattlesnakes incurred the most bites followed in order by copperheads, cottonmouths and coral snakes.

The severity of a poisonous bite is dependent on many factors:

Poisonous snakebites are most serious in children and animals because the smaller size increases the ratio of units of venom injected to units of body weight. Also they are more serious for older people.

A delay of several hours or days in seeking medical treatment is one of the principal contributing factors in fatal bites. Most patients who die do so 12 to 24 hours after being bitten.

A poisonous snake occasionally will inflict a bite wound which does not result in venom poisoning because not enough venom was deposited. Dr. Parrish estimates that about 25 per cent of the bites by poisonous snakes are without enough venom to be poisoning. He said for this reason some people believe they are immune to snake venom. There is no natural immunity but individuals

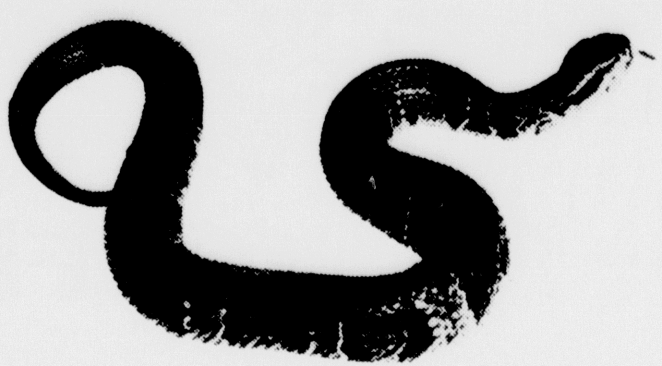

COPPERHEAD

States having the highest estimated bite rates by copperheads are North Carolina, West Virginia, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Virginia and Texas. Most of the bites happen in the victims' own yards. The copperhead is named because of its copper-colored head. Also it is commonly called the dryland moccasin, highland moccasin, chunkhead, pilot snake, poplar leaf snake, red oak snake and white oak snake. It has reddish-brown hourglass markings on the sides of its body and a tail ending in a point without rattles. Its favorite haunts include mountains, wooded hillsides, rock piles, rock quarries and savdust piles. A southern subspecies may be found in lowlands or near streams. It is not unusual to find them within city limits. Mice, birds, insects, frogs and rodents are their major source of food.

CORAL SNAKE

Coral snakes are found in the southern parts of North and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas and in all of Florida and Louisiana. A good way to remember the snake is "red next to yellow will kill a fellow." The snake is brilliantly colored with broad rings of scarlet and black separated by narrow rings of yellow. Rarely over 3 feet long, the Coral has a black snout while other snakes resembling it have red or gray snouts. Also harmless snakes may have yellow and red rings separated by black body rings. The Coral is sometimes called the candy-stick or harlequin snake. It is secretive, less aggressive and rarely bites unless disturbed or handled.

COTTONMOUTH

States having the highest estimated rates of cottonmouth bites are Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Georgia and Florida. They are aquatic snakes whose favorite habitats are swamps, bayous, lakes, rivers, streams, ponds, drainage ditches and rice fields. It is unusual for them to be found very far from water. It is so named because of its tendency to raise its head and open its mouth widely when disturbed. The interior of the mouth is white. Also, it commonly is called the "gapper," the "trap-jaw," and the "cottonmouth moccasin." It is from 3 to 5 feet long and has a thick body, broad head and dark olive to black color with darker crossbands on its body. Some adult snakes do not have the crossbands. Young cottonmouths are lighter in color with brownish-red crossbands which make them resemble copperheads. The cottonmouth is a hazard to swimmers for it can bite while it is submerged.

RATTLESNAKE

Rattlesnakes are quickly identified by the rattle attached to the end of the tail. The rattle consists of a group of horny rings which strike against each other to produce a buzzing sound when the snake is aroused. They are more widely distributed than any other venomous snake in this country and also more dangerous because of the large fangs, large amounts of venom and aggressiveness.

do vary in response to a snakebite due to tissue make-up.

Venom is as toxic in smaller as larger snakes. The amount of venom produced though varies.

The Eastern and Western Diamond Rattlesnakes are especially dangerous for they grow 6-8 feet long, have large fangs and produce greater amounts of venom than smaller rattlers and copperheads. The cottonmouths also are more dangerous than copperheads which are smaller. There are few fatalities among people adequately treated for copperhead bites, he said.

Dr. Parrish said that drop-for-drop, the coral snake's venom is more lethal than a rattlesnake's. But since the coral has short fangs and produces only a small amount of venom, only 20 percent of its bites have any effect on victims.

Many think that bites on the face and body trunk are more serious. But statistics show this is not true, Dr. Parrish said. Most human bites (about 96 percent) are on the extremities-- foot, leg and hand.

Dr. Parrish suggests that if a person is bitten, the snake should be killed and brought along to the hospital in order to assure identification. Otherwise, accurate diagnosis of pit viper snakebites depend on the signs and symptoms which develop.

If the snake were a pit viper, usually three of these four signs are present: fang puncture--also there may be teeth marks, local pain--which is intense and persistent, local swelling--becoming progressive, and local inflammation--redness becoming progressive.

Symptoms which may develop later in serious bites include shock, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, muscular twitching or convulsions, numbness and prickling or itching sensation, motor and respiratory paralysis and external bleeding. These symptoms would not develop if the snake were non-poisonous.

If swelling and redness have not occurred within four hours following a bite, it is reasonably safe to assume that the bite was not from a poisonous pit viper snake.

In general no treatment should be made if these signs are absent. If the local signs are present, first aid treatment should be administered.

A constricting band, or tourniquet, should be applied lightly to the involved extremity several inches above the bite. The band should be tight enough to stop superficial venous and lymphatic flow, but not tight enough to stop arterial circulation.

Release the band every 10-15 minutes for a minute or two.

The band should be advanced to keep just ahead of the swelling for the purpose is to impede the spread of venom until incision and suction (I.S.) can be used or antivenin can be given.

I.S. is effective in removing venom up to one to two hours after the bite. The sooner it is used, the larger the amount of venom can be removed. Suction should be used for about an hour. Oral suction may be used if suction cups are not available. There is little chance of becoming poisoned if the venom is swallowed.

Incisions 1/4 inch long and 1/8 to 1/4 inch deep should be made over the fang punctures. Immobilization aids in limiting the spread of venom. If one must decide between immobilization and seeking prompt medical treatment, the latter should be chosen.

If a person is alone when bitten, he should apply a tourniquet and use I.S. for 15 to 30 minutes and then use any means to get prompt medical attention.

If a person can get medical attention within one hour after a poisonous pit viper bite, he should not use I.S. but should wait and let the doctor do it.

Physicians have antivenin, a serum extracted from horses, to neutralize pit viper venom. Recently a snake antivenin has been produced in this country.

Between 1950 and 1959 only two snakebite deaths were inflicted by coral snakes.

Thornberry and Johnson Pals Since Boyhood

WASHINGTON (AP) -- When the two young Texas boys met more than 45 years ago, there was nothing in the backgrounds of either Lyndon Johnson or Homer Thornberry to indicate they would achieve more than moderate success.

Yet on Wednesday, President Lyndon Johnson nominated Homer Thornberry, the only child of deaf mutes, to be an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Thornberry will take the place on the court held by Abe Fortas, whom the President nominated to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice.

When the two met, Thornberry was a page in the Texas Legislature, while Johnson was around the State House because his father was a legislator.

Both men were of modest background--Thornberry's parents taught at a school for the deaf--and their careers remained closely related as they moved toward political success.

Born 59 years ago, Thornberry made his life politically. Immediately after graduating law school at the age of 27, he was elected to the Texas Legislature. He also served on the Austin, Tex., City Council and when Johnson left the U.S. House of Representatives in 1948 to go to the Senate, Thornberry won the House seat.

Thornberry, a man of medium height and white wavy hair, remained in Congress until 1963 when, through the efforts of the then Vice President Johnson, he was appointed a federal district judge.

In 1965, Johnson appointed his old friend to the Circuit Court of Appeals. The swearing-in ceremony took place at the President's ranch at Johnson City.

Thornberry was considered a liberal in Congress. While he declines to classify his leanings as a judge, many think he will join the generally liberal justices on the Supreme Court, which includes Abe Fortas, William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., and sometimes Potter Stewart.

Thornberry was married in 1945 to Eloise Engle. They have three children, and true to their Texas heritage they all attend the University of Texas, where their father graduated with B.A. and LL.B. degrees.

division of the Agricultural Administration. After a year in that job, he switched to the Security and Exchange Commission as a legal adviser.

He left Yale in 1937 to devote full time to his Washington career and by 1942 had become undersecretary of Interior.

Fortas resigned four years later to help found what is now one of Washington's top law firms, Arnold, Fortas & Porter. He reportedly was making $160,000 a year when he was named an associate justice of the Supreme Court by President Johnson in 1965.

Fortas is one of President Johnson's oldest confidants and advisers, and in some respects perhaps his closest.

His professional association with Johnson dates back to 1948 when he went to the Supreme Court with an appeal that helped put the future president into the Senate.

Johnson had won a Texas primary by only 87 votes and a federal judge had ordered his name off the general election ballot until the outcome could be investigated. Fortas took the issue to Justice Hugo L. Black who set aside the order. Johnson's name went on the ballot and he won the election.

THIS PLOT of land planted in sugar beets is on the A. E. Bolton farm at Bragg City.

Beets Still Interest Farmers

CARUTHERSVILLE - The future of sugar beets in Pemiscot County still holds the interest of farmers.

Many remember that the first plot of sugar beets in this area was planted in 1962. This first planting was to answer the question, "Is Pemiscot County soil adapted to growing sugar beets?"

One plot of beets is being grown in Pemiscot county this year. This plot is on the farm owned by A.E. Bolton at Bragg City. The five banks in Pemiscot county have each contributed money to help defray expenses of raising the crop. These expenses include seed, fertilizer, weed control, cultivation, labor and other miscellaneous costs.

In 1963, Great Western Sugar Company answered the question about Pemiscot County soil being capable of growing sugar beets. The crop that year was sent to a refinery in Colorado to be tested for sugar content. The tests showed the sugar content to be adequate. After six years Great Western has continued to show interest in this area as has the University of Missouri and many other business people.

Included in the study crops at the Delta Project in Portageville, University of Missouri Experiment Station, are plots of sugar beets and other vegetables suitable for this area.

Each plot is treated differently in the study in hopes of it someday being a major crop in this area.

Officials of Great Western continue to visit in the county and observe the progress the Sugar Beets are making. Many people still are optimistic and believe that sugar beets will be grown on a large scale in our county sometime in the near future. Another vegetable crop being grown in Pemiscot County is lima beans on the David Kelly farm at Steele. Kelly feels that he is learning something new about farming and has been quite successful with his lima beans crop.

Three Sentenced To Jail Terms

Three persons who previously pleaded guilty to separate charges were sentenced to jail terms by Judge William H. Billings in Dunklin county circuit court. Prosecuting attorney Charles H. Baker represented the state. Donald Ray Wright, 21, of Kennett, charged with forgery, was sentenced to four years in custody of the state department of corrections.

Wesley Crawford, 25, formerly of St. Louis, now of Blytheville, Ark., and Dave Crawford, 20, formerly of Matthews, now of Blytheville, both charged with felonious stealing were placed in probation three years each in order to be confined in the Dunklin county jail all two Saturdays a month. Wesley Crawford will be confined on the first and third Saturdays and Dave Crawford on the second and fourth Saturdays until January 1, 1969 or until further order.

Two persons pleaded guilty and their cases were continued to July 22 for sentence investigation and report: Paul Eugene Wood, 31, of Kennett, charged with uttering and Donald Lee Rawling, 27, of Malden, charged with felonious stealing.

Family Farming Urged to Halt

Flight to Cities

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Family farmers could halt the flight from farm to city and stem the growth of corporate farming if they could compete with industry on even terms for the capital they need, the head of the U.S. Farmers Home Administration (FHA) said.

Howard Bertsch, addressing about 400 FHA employees from 18 states and Puerto Rico, said it seems clear to him that if the trend of past years continues the nation will wind up with tremendous urban crowding, company and corporate farms and very slim prospects for young farmers.

"The only reason the big farms continue to take over the agricultural empire is because they have easier access to the capital and the market place," Bertsch said.

ESCAPE EQUIPMENT. LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Nebraska's new executive airplane has some special emergency equipment - a can opener.

Attached to the opener is a red tag reading: "For emergency use only."

It all came about when State Aeronautics Director Howard Vest and state pilots Jon Auer and Bob Heilig went to Oklahoma City to pick up the plane. When the pilots climbed aboard for a routine check, they found themselves locked inside because of a malfunctioning door lock.

They had to use an emergency hatch to escape. The "special equipment" appeared unannounced a few days later.

J. D. Baker of Sikeston was the pilot of an airplane which figured in an unusual accident at the Charleston airport Saturday and resulted in a broken leg for Delbert Brown, 15, of Charleston.

Luther Leslie Carter, 209 North Handy, died Saturday at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis, where he was a patient.

Mrs. Ellen Louis Dill, wife of Gord Dill of Sikeston, died Saturday afternoon at the family home, 209 Cresap.

We have asked the Legislature to take action in several areas. In the area of justice, I think that for too long judgeships have been mere political plums where appointments were payoffs, and judicial temperament and ability were secondary considerations.

Our Merit Selection Plan will end that and will insure that judges are picked on ability, irrespective of whether they are Democrats or Republicans.

We have also asked the Legislature to take steps that will give union members control of their unions.

Strangely, union leaders and their allies, the liberal Democrats - those who profess to be champions of the working man - are actively opposed to any such effort.

Our plan is simple. It would provide that on matters of policy union members would have the right to vote by secret ballot.

This does not seem unreasonable for any organization, especially for unions, since they are no longer made up solely of voluntary memberships and men must join unions in order to hold jobs.

At one time, of course, the wage earner had the most to fear from his boss. But no longer. Job security is so built in, it has become difficult to fire any except the most incompetent.

Now the worker is more beholden to his shop steward and his union leader, and he knows this when he goes to vote on controversial union affairs.

It is indeed difficult for a man to vote his conscience or his conviction under the watchful eye of the union boss. Thus, union leaders can sometimes remain in power or establish power when the membership, in actuality, is opposed. A secret ballot would insure real democracy in our unions.

These are only some of the things we are doing in California. And they are only a beginning. In the days and months ahead we will continue trying to implement in California the area, held by our founding fathers - that men are capable of self-government and are the better off for it.

REVISITS SHIP SHE CHRISTENED IN '09
PEARL HARBOR (AP)
The woman who smashed a bottle of champagne on the bow of the battleship Utah on Dec. 23, 1909, was a recent visitor to Pearl Harbor and viewed the rusty hull that took two torpedoes and sank Dec. 7, 1941.

Mrs. Alice Spry Wooley, now 76, was 18 when she wielded the champagne bottle at the New York Shipbuilding Co. at Camden, N.J.

At that time she earned the honor because she was the daughter of Gov. Spry of Utah.

BOARD MEMBERS OF Scott-New Madrid-Mississippi Electric Cooperative and officers for 1968-69 were chosen Tuesday. Ann Landers

Silverware Disappears

Dear Ann Landers: I've been staring at this piece of paper for 15 minutes, not knowing how to put my problem into words. Well, here goes: Have you ever heard of counting the silverware when the company leaves? I never thought I'd have to do it, but I was wrong.

Several months ago we had dinner at the home of friends. I noticed Mrs. A. had at least five different patterns of sterling silver - service for two in one pattern, three in another pattern, and so on. She had service for four in the same pattern I have.

This woman is in our bridge club and she has been here several times for lunch as well as for dinner parties. Recently I was preparing for a buffet supper for 12 when I discovered I was short 3 teaspoons, 2 dinner forks, 2 salad forks, a sugar shell and a cake server.

Have you any suggestions as to how I can hang on to the silver I have left? Don't tell me to not invite her anymore. She is a close friend and her husband and my husband are business associates. TARNISHED RELATIONSHIP

Dear Tarnished: The next time you are in the woman's home make a point of the fact that SOME of her silver is like yours. Ask, too, why she doesn't settle on one pattern instead of trying so many. Do it privately and be sure to convey the message that you are interested in her answers - not just making small talk. She'll get the message.

Dear Ann Landers: I had to write and comment on your advice to "Countdown Mother" - the woman who confess she hated her daughter and treated her shabbily from the day the child was born.

Several women at our card club discussed that letter and most of them said they couldn't understand how a mother in her right mind could despise her own child. I remained silent although I was well qualified to speak since I was such a mother myself.

One day I slapped my child so hard she fell off the chair. She had asked for a second helping of mashed potatoes and wouldn't eat it. Her nose began to bleed and I couldn't stop it. I called the doctor.

When he came I was petrified because the child had lost so much blood. He asked me what happened. I told him the truth. That wonderful doctor urged me to get psychiatric help. He offered to arrange for an appointment at the community clinic.

After 16 months of therapy I am a new woman. I now understand why I hated that child. Furthermore, with understanding has come complete acceptance, if not genuine love. Please continue to tell all mothers who have hostile feelings toward their children to get professional help. It changed my life and saved my daughter. COUNTDOWN MOTHER NUMBER TWO

Dear Mother: Thank you for your letter. It should give encouragement to other mothers who suffer with the same problem. Knowing that there is help, that such a situation is not utterly hopeless, can be immensely supportive.

Confidentially Brought Up With A Closed Mind And Proud Of It: Your mind isn't "closed," my friend - it's nailed shut. I strongly suggest that you open it up occasionally. Something of value may drop in.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The kindergarten program, which will open this fall, will consist of two similar sessions each day, first of which will run from school opening until noon and the second session from noon until the close of school.

Each child will attend only one session. Those children whose parents desire, will be picked up by school buses and the school bus routes will probably determine as to whether or not a particular child will attend either morning or afternoon session.

For example, the district will likely be divided into two attendance areas with those in one area attending the morning session and those in the other half attending in the afternoon. The only exception to this will be rural kindergartners who will be picked up on the regular early morning bus run. Consequently, they will attend the morning session and will be returned to their homes at noon.

This system will be adopted in order to prevent too many costly and repetitious bus routes. Likewise some parents will provide transportation for their child. The exact assignment and/or attendance areas has not been fully determined. This information will be given out prior to the opening of school.

Those parents who may not have enrolled their children for kindergarten are urged to do so as enrollment will likely close with the opening of school.

Work is now going forward on the field house after settlement of the steel strike which has held up construction on the roof structure for several weeks. The fabricators, the cooperative; board members Norbert Rolwing, Charleston; Estel Nelson, Wyatt; L. B. Mayer Dexter, Jim Spradling, Kewanee; Jess Bennett, Bloomfield; Tom Moore Matthews, Charles Grojean, Chaffee, and Emil Neumeyer Jackson.

Pigeon-Thomas of Memphis, informed us that probably they will start on-site construction about the 8th of July and that the roof should take about two months for erection. A very considerable amount of construction, which could not be done until the roof is completed, will remain and it is probable that completion on this job will be several months later than originally scheduled. If all goes well, an unlikely possibility in these times! The building should be ready for use around the 1st of January. This late completion will affect our physical education program, as we were counting on use of this building when physical education classes should be moved inside because of fall weather. Nonetheless, we believe it will be a building of which, not only can the community be proud, but which will add greatly to our educational program.

Progress on the elementary school on Ables Road is proceeding satisfactorily and present indications are that it will be ready for use when school opens. This building contains a number of unique features, including classrooms not of the conventional shape but designed to allow our teachers to carry out improved methods in handling and teaching children. The ideas for the changes were developed by a faculty committee, composed primarily of elementary teachers, who met at intervals for several months before their ideas were put into final shape.

The Council of Economic Advisers to the President, in their report to him stated, "Poverty breeds poverty. A poor individual or family has a high probability of staying poor. Low incomes carry with them high risks of illness; limitations on mobility; and limited access to education, information, and training. Poor parents cannot give their children the opportunities for better health and education needed to improve their lot. Lack of motivation, hope, and incentive is a more subtle but no less powerful barrier than lack of financial means. Thus the cruel legacy of poverty is passed from parents to children."

It is precisely these problems that our educational programs

The Prayer from The Upper Room

There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. (I Corinthians 10:13)

PRAYER: We thank You, Lord, for the guidance You offer us daily. We thank You for Your help that keeps us from falling victim to temptations. Continue to give us wisdom to recognize temptations and power to resist them. Amen.

A bill that has passed both Houses of Congress can be recalled after it is sent to the President only by a concurrent resolution by both Houses.

It is our opinion that the present draft system is an unholly mess. In the first place, we don't think that anyone should be deferred from military service. All eligibles should be considered on the basis of lot or objective chance. But, if a system is to be devised such as the very unfair current method, at least it appears to us that it is as important to have teachers in the classrooms as it is to have students in college classrooms. Because if we don't teach them at the elementary and secondary levels, they certainly aren't going to become students in college classrooms.

Appropos of above, if you know of any, draft exempt science of mathematics teachers, please steer them our way. However, we would like competent ones.

Low incomes carry with them high risks of illness; limitations on mobility; and limited access to education, information, and training. Poor parents cannot give their children the opportunities for better health and education needed to improve their lot. Lack of motivation, hope, and incentive is a more subtle but no less powerful barrier than lack of financial means. Thus the cruel legacy of poverty is passed from parents to children."

Soviet Mood on U.S. Relations Jittery

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Soviet Union's foreign minister says there is reason to believe that American-Soviet relations can be improved, but the Soviet press reflects anything but enthusiasm for such a development. In fact, it indicates that the Kremlin is apprehensive about better relations with the United States.

Like an elephant among mice, the Soviet leadership seems to be acting the role of a frightened giant. The case of jitters displayed by commentaries in the press suggest that Kremlin worries about Western leadership in the "bridgebuilding" and about developments in the communist-ruled Eastern Europe can prove a major obstacle to better East-West relations and a more peaceful world.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, addressing the Soviet Parliament, reported his government ready to exchange opinions with the Americans on curtailment of offensive and defensive rocket systems.

But Gromyko also insisted that the United States is to blame for cool relations, that it must "stop trying to turn the world inside out." The implication was that any real détente would be impossible until the Americans are out of Vietnam.

The tone of the Soviet press in recent days has, indeed, indicated that the Soviet leadership is far from in the "bridgebuilding" and about developments in the communist-ruled Eastern Europe can prove a major obstacle to better East-West relations and a more peaceful world.

Kremlin worries inhibit cooperation.

House Begins Hearing Case Against Hasler

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — justice, Judge L. F. Cottey of Lancaster, Mo.

The Missouri House of Representatives resolved itself into a committee of the whole today to decide whether the evidence gathered by its special committee warranted articles of impeachment against St. Louis County Circuit Judge John D. Hasler of Ladue.

Judge Hasler, as a guest, sat on the sidelines with his attorney, Bertram Elam of Webster Groves.

Elam said they came just to listen and might decide later what course of action to take in the seldom used impeachment procedure.

He protested that the letter inviting Judge Hasler said he could appear as a witness if he liked but if he did so he would subject himself to possible cross examination from the House floor.

The letter also said that "neither you nor your counsel will, as a matter of right, be permitted to cross-examine the witnesses who testify. Every effort will be made, however, to elicit all relevant information from each witness."

The chief witness is Mrs. Jean Shelby of Poplar Bluff, the defendant in a divorce case in which Judge Hasler admitted he had become involved even though it was scheduled for his court. He later withdrew from the case and it is still pending in another division of the St. Louis Circuit Court.

Judge Hasler also has been indicted by a St. Louis County Circuit Court jury for oppression in office because of his actions in the Shelby divorce suit. Some motions of that case will be heard Monday before a special

Police Recover Stolen Vehicle

A car reported stolen at 7:58 a.m. today was recovered less than a half hour later by Sikeston police officer Hiram Gardner Jr.

Mrs. Charles Watson, 600 Taylor, reported she left the keys in her car when she went into the C & M Wholesale Meat Co., 319 West Malone, this morning to purchase meat.

She told police she heard tires squeal and looked outside fearing her car was about to be struck by another vehicle. Her car was gone when she looked, she told police.

Gardner investigated and got a description of the car, which he found parked in the 200 block of Trotter at 8:26 a.m.

The keys were not in the car when it was found and a pair of sunglasses were missing, police reported.

In other activity, two juvenile boys from Morehouse have been arrested and transferred to the authority of juvenile officer Fred Glover by Sikeston police in connection with vandalism Tuesday night or early Wednesday in the 500 block of Greer.

Sikeston police said the two youths admitted painting several buildings with spray paint.

Argentry Colin Carr, 41, 1408 Osage St., was arrested at 5:54 p.m. Wednesday and charged with driving while intoxicated and investigation of no operation's license. He was arrested in the 200 block of Westgate.

Edward Boyd, Mounds, Ill., a construction worker on the Sikeston High School field house, reported to police Monday that a Browning automatic revolver was stolen from the glove compartment of his pickup truck while it was parked at the school.

Spivey's Work Idea Earns $360 Check

Louis D. Spivey, city letter carrier, received a $360 bonus check today from the post office department, Washington D. C., largest award earned by a Sikeston postal employee for a work suggestion.

The award was the result of a suggestion for rescheduling the work load made by Spivey, a carrier technician, that was applied in the Sikeston carrier service during the last year, that produced a saving of $7,090.37 for motor and carrier routes for the 17 carriers employed here.

The award was made by John Buschhorn, postal service regional officer, St. Louis.

The suggestion can be applied to all post offices with five or more carriers, resulting in many hours saved on carrier service routes during heavy mail arrivals.

Spivey has been employed at the post office 20 years. He lives at 212 Broadway, with his wife, Doris, daughter Karen, and son, Larry.

Sun Airlines Installing Booth for Hostess Here

Sun Airlines started building a permanent counter today at the Sikeston Airport facility for the sale of tickets, the placement of a teletype machine used for reservations and the working space for a ground hostess.

Terry Clark, representative for Sun, said Teresa Hammelman of Sikeston has been employed as the ground hostess. She began a one-week course of training today for her duties. She will be taught how to operate the teletype, how to make reservations, how to sell tickets, and how to meet the public. She will begin work at the airport here next Wednesday or Thursday, Clark said.

Response to air service here has not been as good as had been anticipated and possibly some rescheduling is in order, Clark indicated. The response to the Memphis flight has been extremely poor, he added. It leaves Sikeston at 9:55 a.m. and arrives in Memphis at 10:40 a.m. Monday through Friday.

Clark urged passengers to make reservations as soon as they plan to make a flight for the best results in obtaining a flight.

Sun presently is working with major airlines in setting up interline ticket agreements. These agreements will allow passengers to purchase a ticket from Sikeston to almost anywhere. The passenger would fly from Sikeston to St. Louis or Memphis and catch another flight, but his full ticket could be purchased here.

Last week Sun Airlines purchased Florida Airways and acquired four additional aircraft, which are serving Miami, Tampa and other cities in Florida. The company now has nine turbo Cessnas and three Lear Jets, Clark noted.

Reservations, how to make reservations, how to sell tickets, and how to meet the public. She will begin work at the airport here next Wednesday or Thursday, Clark said.

relationship with the university faculty in seeking to solve problems of the region.

"The Delta area and the university get along well because the Delta asks the university for its best. We of the university and the people of the Delta believe in one another. We of the university want to keep it that way," he continued.

Dr. Elmer R. Kiehl, Columbia; dean of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, spoke on the research progress in soybean production.

He termed soybeans "a miracle crop" because it has hundreds of uses. The problem of how to break the soybean yield barrier has become a national problem, he added.

"We have broken the yield barrier in corn production," Dr. Kiehl said. One of the reasons for not breaking the soybean yield barrier is that "we have too long thought of soybeans as a second crop" to be planted when other crops failed.

He called for devoting more resources to soybean research. In the future the industry will be devoting more attention to developing soybean varieties that will be more resistant to disease and insects. He said that because of the work of the study committee Southeast Missouri will be one of the first areas in the nation to break the soybean yield barrier.

Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, vice president for Extension, University of Missouri, spoke on the value of the soybean study as an educational program.

He said the committee's

Memphis Driver Killed in Crash

A Memphis man was killed instantly today at 2:45 a.m. in a one car accident on Interstate 55, 10 miles north of New Madrid.

He was identified as Charles E. Mitchusson, 898 North Highland, Memphis, after an investigation was made by New Madrid County Coroner Leo Hedgepeth. He was traveling north at the time of the accident.

According to the state patrol Mitchusson's car ran off the road into the median, struck a culvert, throwing the man from the car.

The body was taken to Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid.

In another traffic accident today at 2:20 a.m., two were injured in a county road north of Cape Girardeau.

A 1960 DeSoto, driven by Gregory Nunnelee, 19, Cape Girardeau, ran off the road and struck a culvert.

The driver and a passenger, Donald Lee Anderson Jr., 18, Cape Girardeau, received a concussion and cuts.

Both were taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Three were injured in an accident Wednesday at 11:45 a.m. on highway 60, two and one-half miles east of Dexter.

A 1964 Chevrolet, driven by Doris Jean Eaves, age unavailable, route two, Essex, pulled into the highway from a side road in front of a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Jackie Bean Kennedy, Carrier Mills, Ill., age unavailable.

Doris Jean Eaves received head cuts and a passenger in her car, Lawrence Eaves, seven, cuts and bruises. Joann Kennedy, 32, Carrier Mills, Ill., passenger in the 1962 Chevrolet, received a chest injury, cuts and bruises.

The injured were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Donna Cureton, 52, route four, Sikeston, passenger in a 1950 Ford, driven by John Ladd, 26, route one, Sikeston, received a wrist cut in a two-car collision Wednesday at 5:15 p.m. on a gravel road a half mile west of Crowder.

The Ladd car and a 1964 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by Doss Morris, 49, Sikeston, met head-on on a blind curve.

The injured woman was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Tire tread from a 1964 GMC dump truck, driven south, by Valentine J. Unterreiner, 57, Old Appleton, was reported by the patrol to have broken the windshield of a 1966 Chevrolet, driven north by Robert Glennon Dick, 34, Cape Girardeau, cutting Dick's hand as the two vehicles met.

The accident occurred Wednesday at 4:10 p.m., on highway 61, one half mile north of Fruitland.

The injured man was taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Wednesday at 5 p.m. at the north city limits of Cape Girardeau on highway 61, a 1967 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Dennis Kimbro, 43, Carmichael, Calif., ran into the rear of a 1962 Ford, driven by Roger Schreiner, 48, Jackson.

Injured were Schreiner, who received cuts on his head, face, and a leg injury, and his daughter, Donna Kay Schreiner, 18, Jackson, cuts on her face and bruises. Both were taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

A 1962 Pontiac, driven by Lawrence Hock, 48, St. Louis, came from an intersection into highway 61. The Schreiner car swerved to avoid striking the Pontiac and was struck in the rear by the Kimbro pickup truck.

U.S. Troops Abandon Hard To Hold Khe Sanh Base

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops are abandoning and leveling the Khe Sanh combat base, freeing its defenders to join mobile strike forces combating increased enemy forces in South Vietnam's northernmost provinces.

The U.S. Command said abandonment of the base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam where U.S. Marines took more than 2,300 casualties in a 77-day siege last winter "is part of a new concept of mobile warfare being put into operation" below the demilitarized zone, said Brig. Gen. Winant Sidle, chief of information for the U.S. Command.

"Khe Sanh will be leveled, bulldozed and the bunkers closed up," said Sidle. "It's already under way."

On the ground, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 125 enemy troops in a running battle east of Quang Tri City and 19 miles below the demilitarized zone. Government casualties were put at seven killed and 50 wounded.

South Vietnamese infantrymen also uncovered a huge cache of weapons 12 miles west-northwest of Saigon that included 126 rounds of big Russian and Chinese rockets of the type that have been used in shelling the capital.

In the air war, over North Vietnam, the U.S. Command reported that Navy F8 Crusader pilots sighted two Communist MIG21s 12 miles south of the 19th parallel Wednesday and downed one with air-to-air missiles.

It was the first MIG shot down since Feb. 14 and the first since President Johnson ordered a bombing curtailment March 31, limiting American pilots to targets below the 19th parallel. U.S. pilots now are credited with downing 106 MIGs in aerial combat compared to 47 U.S. planes lost to the MIGs.

U.S. headquarters also reported that on Tuesday Navy pilots spotted three MIGs northeast of the coastal city of Vinh and fired on them. The MIGs headed north above the 19th parallel, apparently undamaged.

In its weekly casualty report issued today, the U.S. Command said the number of Americans killed in action last week—299—was the lowest in two months. It said 2,220 Americans were wounded.

Ground Broken for First Plant In New Madrid Industrial Park

By WARREN SOKOLIS
NEW MADRID — Ground was broken Wednesday to mark the start of construction of a $6 million wire and rod mill, the first project of the Noranda Aluminum Inc. complex to be built here.

Turning over the first spades of dirt were Alfred Powis, president and chief executive officer, Noranda Mines LTD., Toronto; L. G. Lumbers, president, Noranda Manufacturing LTD., Toronto; Mayor Robert Riley and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The plant will be in the St. Jude industrial park seven miles south of here.

The mill will employ 100. It is scheduled to begin production in May of 1969.

Noranda also has announced plans for a $70 million aluminum reduction plant, and the city of New Madrid will build a $70 million 580,000 kilowatt steam generating plant at the site.

It has been called the largest single industrial acquisition in Missouri's history.

In remarks at the groundbreaking ceremonies Powis said the Noranda industry will employ about 700 with an annual payroll of more than $5 million.

In addition, the industry is expected to create up to 500 new jobs in service-connected business.

In tracing the history of Noranda's decision to locate here, Powis noted that the company was about to pick another site when it was contacted by New Madrid city officials 18 months ago.

Noranda officials decided to investigate the New Madrid facilities before making the selection, he said. Powis pointed out that the city had many obstacles which had to be overcome before Noranda just the beginning of a major officials were convinced that change in Missouri.

New Madrid would be the best place to locate.

Noranda needed access to a site with water and rail "Our land is rich not only for transportation, power facilities farming, but in its content of a technical trade school, metallic ores. We are located as a crossroads state for the nation, with excellent transportation facilities.

He praised city and state officials for their determination that obstacles could be overcome.

Other fields of production of Noranda and its subsidiaries include copper, silver, potash, pulp and lumber. The New Madrid facility is Noranda's first venture into aluminum.

Noranda firms employ 23,000 in 10 countries.

"We at Noranda are delighted to be locating in this area," Powis said. Thank you very much for having us here."

Governor Hearnes said the location of Noranda "may be citizen of the state."

AT A LUNCHEON at the New Madrid County Club Wednesday preceding groundbreaking ceremonies for the Noranda wire and rod mill, Sam L. Hunter Jr., standing, president of the Bank of New Madrid, called for the area to pledge its support to Noranda. Others from left are, L. G. Shifting Opinion Clouds Gun Control Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shifting public opinion, a delayed vote and President Johnson's sudden call for stricter firearms laws have brought the gun control controversy to a critical stage in Congress.

A bill to ban the mail order sale of all weapons, including rifles and shotguns, was before the Senate Judiciary Committee today for a vote originally scheduled a week ago.

A majority of committee members favored the measure then as the public outcry over Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination crested, but developments since have clouded the issue.

Johnson pushed after the assassination for the ban on rifles and shotguns, then asked Congress in the past week to also enact legislation requiring registration of all guns and licensing of their owners.

Some gun control hawks want to tack that request onto the rifle-shotgun bill.

But public opinion has shifted dramatically, with congressmen now saying their mail is running heavily against stiffer control laws, particularly those requiring registration.

As the administration pushed its case Wednesday in a hearing before the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, the registration measure got a cool reception in the House.

At the same time, Chairman William M. Colmer, D-Miss., of the House Rules Committee

rebuffed attempts to get the mail order bill to a House vote before the July 4 recess by scheduling a hearing to clear the measure for floor action the day before the recess starts.

One officer said of Lt. Sisler: "Ken had a very high, very real sense of duty. To Ken it was a way of life. He lived it and he was right."

Other awards Lt. Sisler had won were: bronze star, purple heart, combat infantryman's badge, Vietnam service medal, national defense medal, gallantry cross with palm and the national order medal of 5th class from the Vietnamese government. He also was honored at Arkansas State University by his fraternity which established the Lt. Ken Sisler outstanding athlete award to honor him in Jonesboro.

The Medal has been awarded only about 2,200 times since its beginning during the Civil War.

Medal of Honor Hero Blunted Assault

WASHINGTON AP — The 39th medal of honor of the Vietnam war was awarded today to a soldier who died after single handedly blunting an enemy assault on his platoon.

The citation honors Army 1st Lt. George K. Sisler, 30, for heroism in combat on Feb. 7, 1967.

His widow, Mrs. Jane B. Sisler of Dexter, Mo., received the medal from Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor in ceremonies at the Pentagon.

Sisler was leader of a special U. S. - Vietnamese exploitation unit which was attacked from three sides by a company-sized force while operating deep within enemy-dominated territory.

"Charging through intense enemy fire to rescue two wounded men, he killed three onrushing enemy," the citation says of Sisler.

"As the left flank of his position came under extremely heavy attack, several additional men of his platoon were quickly wounded."

"Lt. Sisler charged single-handedly into the enemy onslaught firing his weapon and throwing grenades. This heroic action broke up the assault and forced the enemy to begin withdrawing."

"As Lt. Sisler was moving about the battlefield directing air strikes upon the fleeing force, he fell mortally wounded."

Lieutenant Sisler was in army intelligence and attached to the special forces (green beret). He volunteered to take a platoon on a reconnaissance mission into an area known to contain North Vietnamese troops. He rallied his men and with tremendous determination defended his position.

As a result of his example, his force was able to hold off the enemy and call in air strikes that disrupted the attack.

The Medal of Honor may be earned in only one way: By a deed of personal bravery or self-sacrifice above and beyond the call of duty. A letter from his commanding officer explains the circumstances under which he died. "Ken gave his life in the defense of an oppressed people and for a cause in which he believed."

The Medal has been awarded only about 2,200 times since its beginning during the Civil War.

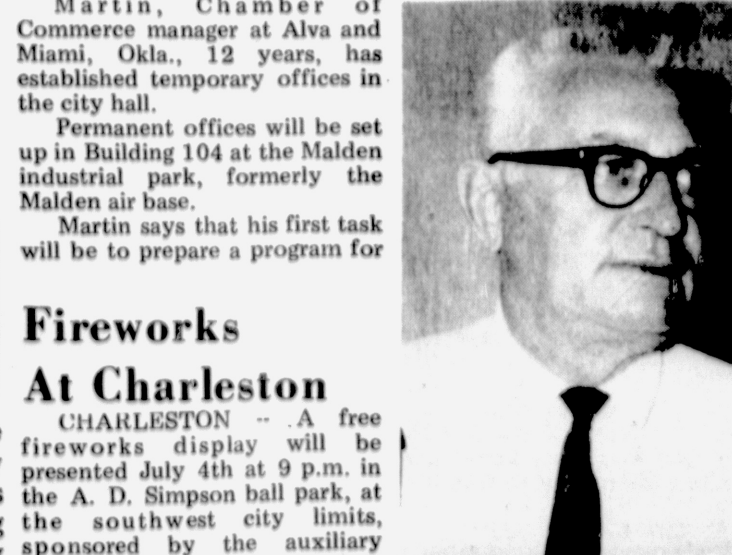

Lt. Sisler and Private Billie Kanell of Poplar Bluff are the only two men known to have received the medal of honor in Southeast Missouri.

One officer said of Lt. Sisler: "Ken had a very high, very real sense of duty. To Ken it was a way of life. He lived it and he was right."

Other awards Lt. Sisler had won were: bronze star, purple heart, combat infantryman's badge, Vietnam service medal, national defense medal, gallantry cross with palm and the national order medal of 5th class from the Vietnamese government. He also was honored at Arkansas State University by his fraternity which established the Lt. Ken Sisler outstanding athlete award to honor him in Jonesboro.

HAPPY (FISCAL) NEW YEAR
The beginning of a new fiscal year on Monday (July 1) is a time of reckoning for Congress the administration, and trend-watchers everywhere.

DESPITE THE NEARBY DISTRACTIONS of Resurrection City, an odd euphoria pervades Capitol Hill. Senate Republican Leader Everett McK. Dirksen (Ill.) says there is "more than a 50-50 chance" that Congress can adjourn by its Aug. 1 target date. Some in the press gallery think he is not being overly optimistic.

The Congress approaches the end of the federal fiscal year in pretty good shape. Many of the basic authorization bills have been signed into law or are well along. Appropriations bills may be cleared - most unusually - by the end of July. The tax surcharge and crime bills are out of the way; the major housing bill is more than half way through. The big hangup could be the foreign aid bill. It has been ordered reported in the House. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is considering marking up the bill this week.

DOWNTOWN the aura is a trifle less heady. Treasury is planning on borrowing about $10 billion to $12 billion in the first half of the year beginning July 1. The total would be less than the $16.3 billion of borrowing in the year-earlier period. The surtax bill will keep the government from seeking an extra $4 billion or $5 billion in the marketplace.

But the public debt will be about $357 billion on July 1, perilously close to the $358 billion ceiling. And tight periods lie ahead. Treasury has its way of finagling to keep under the ceiling - one, suggests TheWallStreet Journal, is stalling on paying federal employees and contractors - but these are only temporary expedients.

But even Downtown the outlook is not completely murky. Enactment of the tax bill will pare the $25 billion budget deficit for fiscal 1968 which administration sources had been suggesting. And the deficit for budgetary 1969 may be only about $3.5 billion as against the $8 billion President Johnson had predicted.

AS FOR BUSINESS, a sharp jump in wages and salaries in the first three months pushed up consumer purchases in real terms as well as in current dollars. But the Federal Reserve Bulletin suggests that "continuation of the Viet Nam conflict rising prices and the large stock of relatively new goods in consumers' hands may continue to retard consumer demands."

Of metalworking managers sampled by Steel magazine, 63.4 per cent look to stagnant or declining profits in the second half of calendar 1968. Impact a business letter distributed by banks suggests that tight money and the tax increase will slow down the breakneck accumulation of manufacturers inventories. A long steel strike after contracts expire Aug. 1 would "chew up stocks rapidly, paving the way for a quick bounceback once the steel men return."

The direst prediction for the future comes from the brilliant and pseudonymous financial writer "Adam Smith." He raises the question, quoting a perhaps mythical Gnome of Zurich (Swiss banker): "Would you believe government bonds yielding 10 per cent? Mortgages at 12 per cent? Would you believe the Dow-Jones Average down 500 points?"

Not in the next fiscal year Adam Smith seems to say. But sooner or later, if we don't fail to meet completely our monetary crisis.

Xuan Thuy chief of the North Vietnamese delegation demands an end to the air raids. We hope that our negotiators tell him to go to hell and that we will quit our air raids when they quit their rocket firing and other forms of attack.

Why should we let them do the demanding? Is it because we are the ones who are begging for peace?

Mr. D. Bruce Mansfield, president of the Ohio Edison Company, says: "We believe in proper government regulation of our industry. We do not, however, believe, that under the guise of regulation, an agency like the Federal Power Commission should have authority to become the 'manager' as well as the 'regulator.'"

Credit collections continue to be a problem for 34 per cent of the nation's independent business and professional men, a National Federation of Independent Business survey reveals.

It's like cherchez la femme.

If there is a crisis, look for the labor forces behind it.

For some years now it has been the theory - proven a hundred times yearly - that most national and international upheavals are turned on by labor or its leaders.

It was thus in Britain this past year during the political and financial cataclysms everybody seems to have forgotten now.

It has been thus wherever today's angry students rip things up.

Certainly it is so in France. And will be so in Italy, Spain and the Near East.

Our columnist Victor Riesel is again taking off on a flying trip through the crisis points on the continent. He will roam, this time, as far as the Near East. He believes the riots and strikes and political dueling need a new kind of coverage.

He will dig as he always has discovering the unknowns, the men who soon become international headlines. And he will expose the undercover, old and new Communist, Trotskyite, and Maoist cadres.

For a few weeks he will speed wherever the guns crackle and the pickets battle.

Nor will he forget that the world is "going labor." And that the labor leaders of yesterday are the prime ministers and heads of state of today, and the leaders of the massive opposition parties on any side of the shredded Iron and Bamboo curtains.

It is this kind of behind-the-scenes reporting in Asia, Africa, Latin America and even in Europe which swung previously unnoticed movements into the world spotlight.

This time he will do it again as only he can. He is one of the few men who has lived right in the eye of the social hurricane now sweeping the continent.

No coverage of American Labor is complete without digging into world labor Paris' Danny the Red and the recent 10 million strikers are evidence of this

This is a new era. Victor Riesel will dig it. To give him travel time, he has asked internationally famous leaders to write comprehensive answers to vital questions now electrifying our nation and the world.

Among Riesel's renowned pinch-hitting columnists will be former Vice President Richard Nixon; Vice President Hubert Humphrey; FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover; GOP challenger Nelson Rockefeller, Mrs. Barbara Castle, the United Kingdom's First Secretary of State of Employment and Productivity; Governors Ronald Reagan and George Romney; Klaus Scheutz, governing mayor of West Berlin; presidential troubleshooter Theodore Kheel, who can successfully mediate any massive conflict and has; and Attorney General Ramsey Clark.

We believe that the exclusive replies of these world leaders are newmakers in themselves.

Many a man has stopped calling her the little woman after seeing her in stocks.

Because certain people like to tell jokes is no sign that they have happy dispositions.

"The average American wastes 20 per cent of the gasoline he puts in the family car because he drives inefficiently," notes "Timely Items" published by the Public Service Company of Colorado. "To get the most out of your gas, check your tire pressure regularly. Underinflated tires can waste half a gallon of gas out of every 20 you buy. Have your motor tuned every 5,000 to 8,000 miles. Faulty spark plugs alone can cut your gas mileage 10 per cent. Avoid repeated, unnecessary braking; nothing burns fuel faster. Because of this, as well as plain safety-sense, leave an adequate distance between yourself and the car you're following. Be sure your car can breathe by keeping your air filter clean. An engine needs at least 9,000 gallons of filtered air for every gallon of gas consumed. Steady your driving. Drivers who race their engines at stop lights, perform jackrabbit starts and race around corners are being uneconomical as well as dangerous."

Before marriage a man is usually on good terms with his relatives. After marriage he begins to drift away from them and, if he is on good terms with his wife, shows increasing fondness for her kin. In a few years he has differences with all the people on his side of the house, and his wife's relatives are taken to his bosom.

The trouble is that every girl is old enough to get married before she is old enough to have sense.

It becomes necessary occasionally for every man to take some kind of punishment. When your time comes, don't annoy others with your screams.

Public Servants. In Wakefield, Mass., the fire department got a call from Mrs. Arthur E. Goodwin, who explained that she was visiting in Topsfield, 20 miles away, wondered if someone could please go to her house and turn off the gas under the carrots.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's little ordeals is to become bald.

Some 40 per cent of men are afflicted to a greater or lesser degree with hereditary early baldness.

The first warning often comes from an offhand remark by a barber:

"Getting a bit thin on top, sir. I'd do something about it if I were you."

Panic seizes you at once. What can you do about it?

Every time you use your comb after that and a hair comes out it looks like the last leaf upon the tree. So you take scalp treatments, douse your skull with all kinds of tonics, rub into your scalp enough unguents and ointments to grease a battleship.

But the more you do about it, the more you worry. And the more you worry, the more you can't help noticing that your forehead is getting higher.

Sorrowfully, you are forced to admit that there are two things money can't do. It can't buy true love, and it can't grow hair on a permanently bald head—except, perhaps, by expensive surgical transplants beyond the ordinary purse.

"No practical remedy for this common baldness is available," says the Encyclopedia Britannica, which puts the chief blame on heredity, age, and the influence of male sex hormones.

The same bitter truth is embalmed in the homely old folk saying, "The best way to avoid losing falling hair is to keep it in a cigar box."

Baldness is not actually a physical handicap, or in most cases a social handicap. It is simply an emotional handicap. With his hair gone or going a fellow simply doesn't feel quite all there. But it isn't nearly as bad as losing your teeth—or your judgment.

The worst thing about it is the jests of your friends who pretend to mistake your gleaming pate for a lighthouse on sunny days or insist on calling you "Curly."

A few punches to the nose, however, can cure this.

The second worst thing is to see so many dull young hippie-type men going around with such long thatches of hair dangling from their heads it's no wonder their brains are heated to a boil.

But envy never helped anybody, and it is of no help to a baldy. He must find other solaces, and they are available.

For example, he might learn to take pride in his condition. After all, many modern savants predict the whole human race will be bald in a few centuries. The baldy is merely ahead of the pack.

Also, baldness saves a man ime, money and makes him look crisper and neater. Doesn't a cueball look tidier than a hairball?

The ordeal of baldness could be lessened in other respects if society itself would show a bit more kindness.

Let's stop kidding bald men. Another constructive step would be to start a campaign to get Congress to have the bald eagle replaced by the bald man as our national symbol.

This makes real sense. The bald eagle is slowly dying out, but there are millions of new bald men every year. Nothing is more symbolic of America today than baldness.

HELICOPTER SERVES CITY HOSPITALS

The first private helicopter ambulance service in the United States is operating in Wyandotte, Michigan, a Detroit suburb, and has dramatically proved its life-saving capabilities.

The helicopter on its first mission involved the transfer of a critically burned patient from Wayne County General Hospital to the University of Michigan Burn Center at Ann Arbor.

Walt Gutowski, president of the Superior Ambulance Service anticipated that most trips would be 20 to 25 miles, but planned to offer the service within a 100 mile radius. However, another emergency sent the helicopter 200 miles away to Dayton, Ohio to transport a brain tumor patient.

"The doctor told me the patient could not have survived a move of this distance if it had not been for the helicopter," Gutowski said. "In addition to the smooth trip, we saved an hour to an and a half over surface transportation."

Watch the fellow ahead, but remember the fellow behind who is after your job.

The soldier came home after a year's absence and found his wife sick. He took her to the doctor, who told him confidentially that his wife was pregnant.

"Why that's impossible doctor," said the bewildered soldier. "I've been away for more than a year!"

"Yes, I know," replied the doctor. "We've had cases like this before. We call it grudge pregnancy. You see, someone had it in for you."

From an ad for work clothes on a TV station: "And when they get dirty, just throw 'em in the washer and let 'em rip!"

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Negro columnist George Poor people spoiled their Schuyler calls "Insurrection original goals by staying too City... misled by a passel of long; there is too much poverty peripatetic, pulpless parsons in the USA; congress is callous who are veterans of planned pandemonium."

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his second grandson, George L. Arnold, Jr.)
June 24, 1968

Dear Georgie,

Last week, your brother Drew was walking down to the Lincoln Memorial past Resurrection City when he was accosted and beaten. It was the day before the solidarity march and he was going down there to volunteer to help the march.

As he was passing Resurrection City a young Negro inside the fence shouted at him to come over there. Drew kept on walking. The Negro slipped out through a hole in the fence, came up from behind and cracked Drew over the neck and shoulder with a club. Then another Negro jumped out from nowhere and hit him with another club. A third threw a big rock which hit him in the back. They spewed out some filthy cuss words.

Your brother wrote a solidarity button featuring white and black hands together. But that didn't make any difference to the young hoodlums.

Fortunately Drew wasn't too badly hurt. And the next day he got up at 6:30 a.m. and went down to the Washington monument to act as an usher for the march. He realized that the young Negroes who had jumped him did not represent the real segment of the poor people.

They did represent a segment of hatred against whites which recently has become much intensified, and constitutes a real danger in this country. By this time the great majority of the poor people who first came to Washington had already gone home and only the dregs remained. There have been rapes and robberies inside Resurrection City, with young Negroes coming outside to taunt the police with, "We want a whitey."

"PLANNED PANDEMONIUM" So what started as a well-intentioned move to impress congress with the plight of the poor is ending in what final days, accomplished something. It helped to pry loose more than $200 million in surplus food. It also speeded up the housing bill. But more important than anything else, it focused public attention on the fact that there is a large segment poor people hurt the ideals they set out to help. This week, for instance, the education bill was further down the economic ladder.

Some of them, like the young hoodlums who attacked your brother, have come to accept violence as a way of life. They excused to boast that they murder, beat up, rape, even weren't going to be bulldozed by Rev. Abernathy into voting for these vital programs.

The poor people have already hurt those who have helped the most. The booted Vice President Humphrey, who over the years has initiated every civil rights bill in congress. They picketed Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, who has done more to feed people than any one else in government.

Unfortunately his hands are sometimes tied by restrictions passed by congress. And if the poor people really wanted to picket effectively, they would single out Rep. W. R. Poage of Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, and a o m e o f h i s Dixiecrat-Republican cohorts. They are the ones who pass these restrictions.

I remember that after Sen. Joe Clark of Pennsylvania called attention to starvation in Mississippi, one whole year before the poor people's march, Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi passed a $25 million appropriation bill to feed the hungry.

That, however, was as far as it got. The money was blocked by Rep. Poage and the Republicans on his committee. They wouldn't hold public hearings. Poverty is a problem which concerns everyone. It does not involve military secrets or the defense of the nation. Yet Chairman Poage insisted on holding closed-door hearings so the public would not know how he killed the money to feed the poor.

THE LABOR GAP
The poor people's march with all its unpleasant aspects in the speed-up in this area does not constitute a commitment to approve commercial shipments later, but Americans who oppose building up the strength of countries under the domination of sworn enemies of freedom will not derive much comfort from that statement. The fact must be faced that some U.S. businessmen are ready and eager to deal with these countries. In their hunger for profits they are willing to trade with those whose basic tenet of faith is opposition to the profit system. The well known slogan "Business is business" can hardly be extended to justify trading with communists, whose main objective is to eliminate the personal enterprise system which makes American business possible. If that system goes, our freedom is certain to go with it. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Steel Union Chief Says by income, or negative tax, will Year 2,000 People Will Be Paid likely become a reality out of for Not Working "Abe" Abel, leader of the massive steel industry, he projects. Looking ahead is his forte. So I asked this leader of one million unionists what the union of the year 2,000 will be like. What will it demand?

Here is his reply - guaranteed not to permit American industrialists much sleep. And here is why, in his own words:

By I. W. (Abe) Abel resident of the United Steelworkers of America and the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department Pittsburgh - It is a pleasure for me to comply with the request of the usual writer of this column and do a guest column on the subject that he suggested: A trade union view of the year 2000.

Mr. Riesel's suggested topic and my compliance rate at least some kind of an award for confidence that man will arrive safely in the 21st century and that he will have managed peace and justice in the meantime. Our condition when we arrive in the next century and the state of our spiritual, emotional and physical luggage will depend upon how well we travel the intervening years.

We cannot expect to arrive at some promised land merely by our ability to survive soiled skies, polluted waters and to exist in a congested, turbulent and scared society.

The shaping of tomorrow's policies depends on bravely confronting today's problems and issues. We will travel the route together - black and white, young and old, rich and poor—with understanding, patience and determination or there is a danger we may not make the trip at all.

On that great day when we discover that we have resolved - as a nation of many races and nationalities - to make our society work for all, then we will know that we will be able to meet whatever the years after 2000 may hold for us.

The one dominating force, for good or bad - once we have put aside the nuclear bomb from the horizon and the problem of city ghettos - is our rapid transformation to a society of automation, computers, and cybernetics.

Some say there is no need to fear the computer age because technological advances in the past have worked out for the common good. But listen to the cautionary words of Dr. Norbert Wiener, an outstanding pioneer of automation: "The hour is very late and the choice of good and evil knocks at the door."

Can anyone guarantee that there won't be great upheavals in our future economy as the machine begins to take over? No one ever thought we would see what we have seen in the cities of America in recent summers. So, there is no guarantee as to what we will see in our industrial society.

So far, unfortunately, the economic and political processes of this nation have been dominated by an emphasis and concern for private enterprise and the compiling of profits. The worker is still more the servant of industry than a full partner in its affluence. The consumer is still more a victim of management than a beneficiary of increased efficiency and profits. The worker and consumer still do not share fairly in America's riches through fair wages and prices.

To really hear the rhythms of history about their warnings, and to have a full appreciation of their meaning, I suggest that white Americans visit our city slums and ghettos as I have done as a member of the President's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders.

Our economic and industrial society changes and becomes more computerized, we are going to arrive at a point where a small portion of our available work force can produce all that is needed. When we arrive at that point we will have to take care of those who do not have a job and who are not needed for work.

The proposals for guaranteed work.

Unions will play a vital role in the future, as they have in the past and do in the present. In fact, we can expect labor to have a greater impact on the society of tomorrow.

In the next century the interests of unions will become still broader and more worldwide in scope. Organized labor will play a larger political role as government seeks answers to the problems of ever greater population, the care of the jobless and a more equitable economic system. Unions will become more involved in the broad economic planning that will be necessary in the 21st century. They will seek new and startling provisions in collective bargaining agreements. Workers should not be expected to bear the brunt of problems resulting from automation.

Unions will concentrate on contracts that will protect jobs, allow more time for education and study, provide training to develop new skills needed to operate the new machines and computers. In short, man must be the prevailing consideration. One thing is certain in the future: No matter how industry changes, unions will respond and adapt to represent and protect the interests of their members. Unions have responded and adapted in the past and, in fact, are responding all the time to industrial changes.

For example, unions and the public are now hearing a new word - "conglomerate." There are now business mergers in unrelated fields - steel with plastic, copper with coal - and this is what is meant by a "conglomerate."

A conglomerate confronts its workers with huge economic and political power. The conglomerate is the new colossus facing workers. It dwarfs the union that represents its employees.

As long as we see large companies becoming larger, we must have large organizations of people to bargain with them. There is going to have to be added emphasis on coordinated bargaining, and perhaps we will see more union mergers and conglomerate unions confronting their conglomerate counterparts.

In order for workers to bring some measure of equality to the collective bargaining table of the 21st century, unions are going to continue to come up with imaginative and workable techniques.

Because of the rapid changes in industry and the growing complexity of industry, unions are going to have to place increased emphasis upon education and training to ensure capable leadership in the future.

A major problem in the next century will involve leisure time. The shorter work week, long vacations and earlier retirement will provide leisure in ever-increasing quantities. Therefore, we must find a way to use leisure wisely, perhaps through more emphasis on education, the arts, other cultural activities and increased dedication to human service.

In the 21st century we will have - as we do now - the resources, the genius and the ability to do what we will. But the big questions are: Can we overcome lethargy and resistance to change to make progress rapidly enough; and can our political institutions react quickly enough to a time of rapid change and demands?

This new world that we will be stepping into in the 21st century will be unbelievably exciting and it will demand leadership with the genuine courage to make needed changes. I hope that tomorrow's leaders will measure up, and that today's leaders will lead us into the 21st century fully prepared for the years that follow.

REPEATED PREGNANCIES DANGER TO HEALTH SAN ANTONIO, TEX. (WMNS) -- Why do health experts consider family planning an important ingredient in maternal and child health care? Here's the answer: Dr. Arthur Lesser, deputy chief of the Children's Bureau gave to Women's Medical News Service at a recent medical meeting here:

"Studies have shown that repeated child bearing impairs the health of women and does not lead to healthy children," the physician explained.

"We know that the highest birth rate is among the poor -- and so is the highest infant mortality rate. We know that two-thirds of all babies who die in their first year die of complications associated with prematurity."

"Repeated studies have shown," Dr. Lesser noted, "that women with a history of giving degrees when hired, had 30 percent fewer coronaries!"

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Smith of St. Joseph. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Louis Eddy of New Madrid.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a complicated pregnancies will repeat this history," he continued "We know that the interval between births bears a significant relationship to prematurity."

Dr. Lesser emphasized that the federal government has made an increasing amount of money available for family planning in the past few years because, he said, "We want to make it possible for poor women to space their children in accordance with their wishes and with due consideration given to their health needs."

Noting that there has been a significant decline in the rate of infant mortality among the poor in some large cities where family planning services have been made available, Dr. Lesser concluded, "I believe this proves that poor women want a chance to space their children. We hope that by making family planning services increasingly available to them, they will be able to make their own free choice on the number of children they have."

LADDER CLIMBING NO HEART ACHE BOSTON, MASS. (WMNS) -- Ladies, encourage your husbands to be ambitious. A five-year study of 270,000 Bell employees, reported at a meeting here, indicates that top management men seem to run a lower risk of getting a coronary than men in the lower echelons.

Heart disease, the study suggests, is not linked to tension as much as it is to smoking, eating habits, and even education. Men who had college degrees when hired, had 30 percent fewer coronaries!

Victoria Byrd

Celebrates Fifth

Birthday at Party

Victoria Byrd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Joe Byrd of Miner, celebrated her fifth birthday Monday at Angel Day nursery.

The children sang "Happy Birthday" as she blew out the candles on her cake.

Present were Junior Bickford, Michael Lee, Kevin and Libby Boyer, Nick Garner, Karen Happe, Buzz and John Ferrell, Steve and Michelle Johnston and Mickey Moyer.

Favors were candy and bubble gum.

Why do people do what they do,

What evilness lurks in their minds.

How can it be, that they throw out the good,

And take the insanity left behind.

The night was good, the victory won, No one knew what was to be.

And then eight shots one after one,

Wounded Senator Kennedy.

The doctors tried to save his life,

They worked two nights and a day.

But with all they could do, and try as they did,

They still had to wait, and pray.

And then in the night it happened,

The time was after three.

The Good Lord came and took with him,

Senator Bobby Kennedy.

Why did this happen to such a good man,

And such a good man was he.

I say these words with all of my heart:

God Bless Bobby Kennedy.

Trinity WMS Aids Student

The Women's Missionary Society of Trinity Baptist church met at the church for its business meeting and the Royal Service program.

As the women arrived they were seated around a large table in the library. Centering the table were bouquets of gloriosa daisies and mountain mint.

Members of the night circle served lemonade and crackers before the business meeting began.

Mrs. James Beaird, vice president, presided.

Mrs. Truman Bennett, prayer chairman, read the scripture, names of missionaries having birthdays on that date and led in prayer.

Reports from committee chairmen were read.

Mrs. A. J. Heuser, mission action chairman, reported eight women from the WMS had helped in the Vacation Bible School just concluded. The day circle served cookies each day.

The Program, "Pluses for New Missionaries," was under the direction of Mrs. Herschel Deal.

Mrs. Heuser read a scripture and led in prayer.

Mrs. Beaird, Mrs. Mulcahy, Miss Georgia Houchens and Mrs. Rudy Chittenden gave parts of the program, pointing out advantages and helps the missionaries are given before going on the field of service and after they are settled and at work.

Mrs. Limbaugh closed the meeting with prayer.

GOP Leaders Adopt Pledge Of Harmony

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri Republican leaders joined together in a harmony pledge regardless of any differences that may result at their state convention in Kansas City Saturday.

The statement came from State Chairman Dorman Steelman of Salem, Gene Taylor of Sarcoxie, national committeeman, and Mrs. Rosemary Ginn of Columbia, national committeewoman.

They mentioned recent news stories pointing to a split over choice of four delegates at large to the Republican National Convention. Steelman is on one side in that battle and Taylor and Mrs. Ginn on the other.

Today they said any contests at the state convention will not deter them from a unified effort to elect Republicans in November.

"We would like to emphasize," they said, "that our state convention will be conducted in a fair and impartial manner and once the delegates have made their choices, we pledge that we will without reservation accept their decision and march forward together in an all out effort to produce a victory, not only for the Republican party, but in a larger sense for the people of this state and nation."

The GOP leaders said they have an outstanding ticket in Missouri which has attracted great enthusiasm from the public.

They did not refer specifically to the delegate fight. Twenty of Missouri's 24 delegates already have been selected at district conventions and most of them are regarded as Nixon supporters.

RUSSIA CLOSES MISSILE GAP

When it became evident a generation ago that there were many Communists in top circles of our government, action should have been taken immediately to remove them. Those who insisted upon doing so, however, were regarded as extremists. The view prevailed that our country was so safe and our freedom and our form of government so secure that a few Communists could be tolerated.

When we developed the atom bomb twenty-three years ago, it should have been regarded as a top secret. However, there were enough Communists and Communist sympathizers in our government to transmit full information about the making of these bombs and material with which to make them to the Soviet Union. This story has been told and retold for more than twenty years and has never been denied. Again it was said that our country is so far advanced scientifically and the Communists are so undeveloped in that respect, that they can never catch up and we will not be endangered by allowing them to have strategic information.

When the Kremlin Tyrants exploded their first bomb, the American people gave little heed and we heard such remarks as, "It will take twenty years for them to rival our strength." I was shocked when I heard that remark. Suppose it would take twenty years—what then? Do we relish Soviet domination any more now than we did twenty years ago? Now the twenty years has rolled around and the headline in the States in land-based, strategic missiles. The opening line in the article, with a Washington

If You Were the Judge

State College Can Offer Bible Course

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

A state supported college offered a literature course on the Bible. Commencing with a man and a woman in a garden, it was to end with Revelations. It never however got that far. Almost before the course could begin, several ministers hurried to court where they demanded that the course be ordered discontinued.

"A state supported college cannot give a course on the Bible," they argued. "It violates the Constitutional prohibition against using public funds in support of religion."

"Nonsense," responded a college official. "We're not teaching religion. We're teaching literature. We're taking the Bible and looking at it objectively. While the Bible may suggest that men have made monkeys of themselves and while science may suggest that monkeys have made men of themselves, we're not concerned with either approach. We're only concerned with the Bible as a book."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the state supported college to stop giving its Bible course?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a state supported college is not prohibited by the Constitution from giving a literature course on the Bible which is taught objectively, has no effect on religious beliefs is not slanted toward any particular theological point of view, and does not indoctrinate anyone. To study the literary features of the Bible, concluded the judge, violates no constitutional prohibitions.

DEPARTMENT STARTS "NEW LOOK"

MOWING ALONG STATE HIGHWAYS

How would you like to mow a lawn 32,000 miles long? That's enough grassy miles to circle the globe -- and then some. And that's the size of the mowing job now facing the Missouri State Highway Department.

Obviously, this is no weekend job. It requires men -- some 1130 of them; machines -- 1130 of them, ranging from small mowers to gang mowers up to about 15 feet wide; and standards -- to insure uniform appearance.

Most weekend mowers "rev dateline, reads: "Solid evidence now in the hands of top administration officials indicates that the Soviet Union is close to pulling even with the United States in land-based, strategic missiles."

That is no surprise. Many of us have been warning year after year that this was in the process of happening.

All sight distance areas, such as inside of curves in the vicinity of approaches, and around signs, will be mowed as often as necessary to maintain good visibility for safety. Abrupt changes in widths will be avoided by contour mowing at transition points.

"What should result," said Fletcher, "is mowing which will heighten the beauty of right ways by blending them in more naturally with surrounding areas."

The Department's "new look" mowing also calls for other changes. These include time-consuming work, mowing limits on mowing of steep slopes, more intensive mowing in urban and developed areas, and According to Fletcher, the procedures for mowing after the growing season.

"Our mowing operations," said Fletcher, "will be coordinated with an effective herbicide and fertilizing program. The use of herbicides and fertilizer will help reduce the mowing required to keep vegetation to a desirable height, eliminate objectionable growth and improve the quality of desirable grasses."

In addition to being time-consuming work, mowing limits on mowing of steep slopes, more intensive mowing in urban and developed areas, and According to Fletcher, the procedures for mowing after the

ELECTRIC DISHWASHER CUTS WORK IN HALF

An electric dishwasher can cut the time spent doing dishes by at least half, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. This is nothing to be sneezed at when you consider that the average family of four uses about 45,500 dishes a year.

Saving time isn't the only benefit either, the Bureau points out. The dishwasher uses hotter water than hands can stand, so dishes come out cleaner and more sanitary.

Women who don't own

dishwashers are the only ones settings not only for rinsing, who think the dishes must washing and drying but also for undergo such preparations as washing everything from heavy "pre-rinsing" before being put pots and pans to delicate china into the dishwasher. Males, 5-19, Have Most Poisonous Snake Bites

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Males between the ages five and 19 have the highest rates of poisonous snake bites, according to studies by Dr. Henry M. Parrish, professor of community health and medical practice at the University of Missouri school of medicine.

The snake bite season, which began in April, will reach its peak in July and August and taper off in September. These are the months people are more active outdoors and also when snakes are more active. These facts are taken from the writings of Dr. Parrish and co-authors on poisonous snakes found in the United States. Dr. Parrish is author of 150 papers on poisonous snake bites published in various medical and scientific journals.

Dr. Parrish conducted a national survey of venomous snake bites including all states except Alaska and Hawaii which have no native poisonous snakes. He estimates that 6,680 persons are snake bitten annually in the United States but only 15 fatally. The World Health Organization has estimated that throughout the world 30,000 to 40,000 people die annually.

Only about 10 per cent of the snakes native to the United States are venomous. These are all of the pit viper family except the coral snake.

The pit vipers, which are responsible for 99 per cent of all poisonous snakebites in the United States, are rattlesnakes, cottonmouths and copperheads. A poisonous pit viper is so called because of a deep pit located between the eye and nostril. With close observation one can distinguish elliptical pupils and two well-developed fangs which protrude from the upper jaw when the mouth is open.

Harmless snakes do not have fangs or fangs but have teeth and round pupils. The coral snake is the only U.S. coral snake that has round pupils and lacks facial pits.

States having the highest poisonous bite rates per 100,000 population are, in order, North Carolina, Arkansas, Texas, Georgia, West Virginia, Mississippi, Louisiana and Oklahoma. North eastern states have fewest reported bites—Minnesota, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Rhode Island and New York.

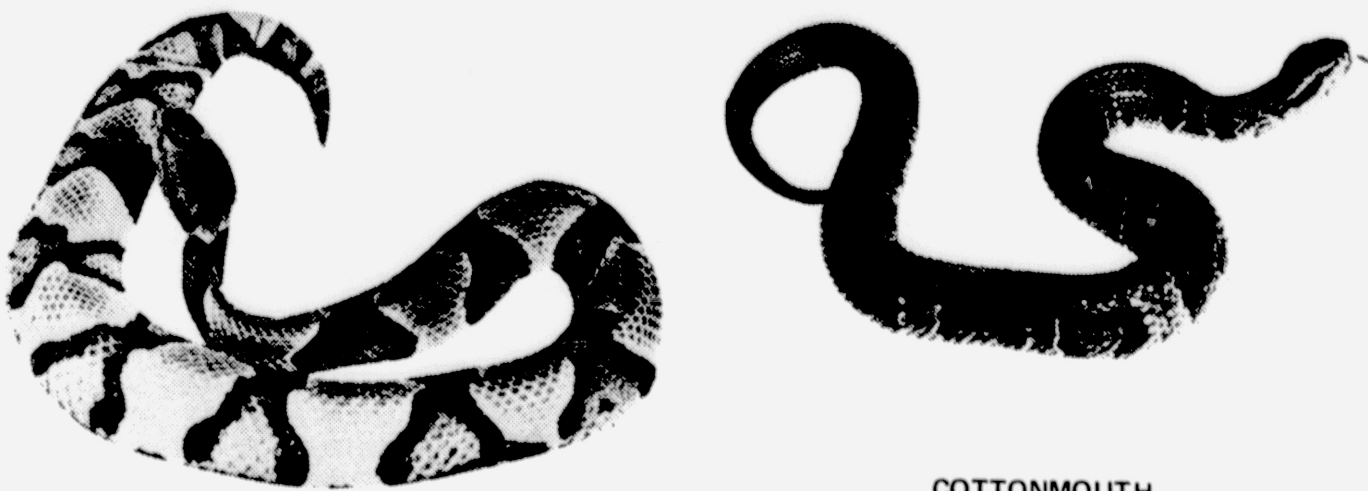

Rattlesnakes incurred the most bites followed in order by copperheads, cottonmouths and coral snakes.

The severity of a poisonous bite is dependent on many factors:

Poisonous snakebites are most serious in children and animals because the smaller size increases the ratio of units of venom injected to units of body weight. Also they are more serious for older people.

A delay of several hours or days in seeking medical treatment is one of the principal contributing factors in fatal bites. Most patients who die do so 12 to 24 hours after being bitten.

A poisonous snake occasionally will inflict a fang wound which does not result in venom poisoning because not enough venom was deposited. Dr. Parrish estimates that about 25 per cent of the bites by poisonous snakes are without enough venom to be poisoning. He said for this reason some people believe they are immune to snake venom. There is no natural immunity but individuals

COPPERHEAD

States having the highest estimated bite rates by copperheads are North Carolina, West Virginia, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Virginia and Texas. Most of the bites happen in the victims' own yards. The copperhead is named because of its coppery-red head. Also it is commonly called the poplar moccasin, highland moccasin, chunkhead, pilot snake, dryland leaf snake, red oak snake and white oak snake. It has reddish-brown hourglass markings on the sides of its body and a tail ending in a point without rattles. Its favorite haunts include mountains, wooded hillsides, rock piles, rock quarries and sawdust piles. A southern subspecies may be found in lowlands or near streams. It is not unusual to find them within city limits. Mice, birds, insects, frogs and rodents are their major source of food.

CORAL SNAKE

Coral snakes are found in the southern parts of North and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas and in all of Florida and Louisiana. A good way to remember the snake is "red next to yellow will kill a fellow." The snake is brilliantly colored with broad rings of scarlet and black separated by narrow rings of yellow. Rarely over 3 feet long, the Coral has a black snout while other snakes resembling it have red or gray snouts. Also harmless snakes may have yellow and red rings separated by black body rings. The Coral is sometimes called the candy-stick or harlequin snake. It is secretive, less aggressive and rarely bites unless disturbed or handled.

RATTLESNAKE

States having the highest estimated rates of cottonmouth bites are Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Georgia and Florida. They are aquatic snakes whose favorite habitats are swamps, bayous, lakes, rivers, streams, ponds, drainage ditches and rice fields. It is unusual for them to be found very far from water. It is so named because of its tendency to raise its head and open its mouth widely when disturbed. The interior of the mouth is white. Also, it commonly is called the "gapper," the "trap-jaw," and the "cottonmouth moccasin." It is from 3 to 5 feet long and has a thick body, broad head and dark olive to black color with darker crossbands on its body. Some adult snakes do not have the crossbands. Young cottonmouths are lighter in color with brownish-red crossbands which make them resemble copperheads. The cottonmouth is a hazard to swimmers for it can bite while it is submerged.

Rattlesnakes are quickly identified by the rattle attached to the end of the tail. The rattle consists of a group of horny rings which strike against each other to produce a buzzing sound when the snake is aroused. They are more widely distributed than any other venomous snake in this country and also more dangerous because of the large fangs, large amounts of venom and aggressiveness.

Kansas, Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Oklahoma. Rattlers, copperheads, cottonmouths and corals—Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina.

Thornberry and Johnson Pals Since Boyhood

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the two young Texas boys met more than 45 years ago, there was nothing in the backgrounds of either Lyndon Johnson or Homer Thornberry to indicate they would achieve more than moderate success.

Yet on Wednesday, President Lyndon Johnson nominated Homer Thornberry, the only child of deaf mutes, to be an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Thornberry will take the place on the court held by Abe Fortas, whom the President nominated to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice.

When the two met, Thornberry was a page in the Texas Legislature, while Johnson was around the State House because his father was a legislator.

Both men were of modest background—Thornberry's parents taught at a school for the deaf—and their careers remained closely related as they moved toward political success.

Born 59 years ago, Thornberry made his life politics. Immediately after graduating law school at the age of 27, he was elected to the Texas Legislature. He also served on the Austin, Tex., City Council and when Johnson left the U.S. House of Representatives in 1948 to go to the Senate, Thornberry won the House seat.

Thornberry, a man of medium height and white wavy hair, remained in Congress until 1963 when, through the efforts of the then Vice President Johnson, he was appointed a federal district judge.

In 1965, Johnson appointed his old friend to the Circuit Court of Appeals. The swearing-in ceremony took place at the President's ranch at Johnson City.

Thornberry was considered a liberal in Congress. While he declines to classify his leanings as a judge, many think he will join the generally liberal justices on the Supreme Court, which includes Abe Fortas, William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., and sometimes Potter Stewart.

Thornberry was married in 1945 to Eloise Engle. They have three children, and true to their Texas heritage they all attend the University of Texas, where their father graduated with B.A. and LL.B. degrees.

Fortas Paid School Bills By Fiddling

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — If the Senate goes along with President Johnson, Abe Fortas will be known by the dignified title of Mr. Chief Justice. But when he was a young man working his way through school by playing the violin at dances his friend called him "Fiddlin' Abe."

Young Fortas led his own band, The Blue Melody Boys, while attending Memphis' South Side High School and Southwestern College. He got $8 a job, a large sum for the son of a Jewish immigrant who worked variously as a jeweler, furniture dealer and cabinet maker.

Johnson Wednesday named Fortas to be chief justice in place of retiring Earl Warren.

Fortas was born in Memphis June 19, 1910, the youngest of five children of Woolfe and Rachel Berzansky Fortas, who had come to the United States from Southampton, England.

Young Abe was an excellent student. His late brother, Meyer, reminiscing several years ago, recalled his capacity for concentration.

"He studied by the radio. He would turn on the radio and sit close to it. He seemed to concentrate better that way. I couldn't have studied with all that sound. It was fascinating to see."

It was at Southwestern, a small Presbyterian college which he attended on a scholarship, that Fortas decided to pursue law as a career instead of music.

After graduation, he was offered law scholarships to Harvard and Yale. He chose Yale because it paid $50 a month more.

He completed law school in 1933 and remained on at Yale as an assistant professor of law. But Fortas spent much of his time commuting between Yale and Washington, D.C., where he got his political indoctrination as assistant chief of the legal

Storm Destroys Barn, Kills Cattle

ADVANCE - A windstorm about 5 a.m. Tuesday destroyed a barn a mile south of Advance, killing 12 head of cattle.

Wilburn Raber, the owner of the barn and cattle, said several other cows and calves were injured when the wind blew the barn in. He said 50 head of cattle were in the barn at the time.

Raber said neighbors were called and helped to remove the injured and surviving cattle from the ruins.

About 2 1/4 inches of rain were reported during the storm.

division of the Agricultural Administration. After a year in that job, he switched to the Security and Exchange Commission as a legal adviser.

He left Yale in 1937 to devote full time to his Washington career and by 1942 had become undersecretary of Interior.

Fortas resigned four years later to help found what is now one of Washington's top law firms, Arnold, Fortas & Porter. He reportedly was making $160,000 a year when he was named an associate justice of the Supreme Court by President Johnson in 1965.

Fortas is one of President Johnson's oldest confidants and advisers, and in some respects perhaps his closest.

His professional association with Johnson dates back to 1948 when he went to the Supreme Court with an appeal that helped put the future president into the Senate.

Johnson had won a Texas primary by only 87 votes and a federal judge had ordered his name off the general election hour.

ballot until the outcome could be investigated.

Fortas took the issue to Justice Hugo L. Black who set aside the order. Johnson's name went on the ballot and he won the election.

THIS PLOT of land planted in sugar beets is on the A. E. Bolton farm at Bragg City.

Beets Still Interest Farmers

CARUTHERSVILLE - The future of sugar beets in Pemiscot County still holds the interest of farmers.

Many remember that the first plot of sugar beets in this area was planted in 1962. This first planting was to answer the question, "Is Pemiscot County soil adapted to growing sugar beets?"

One plot of beets is being grown in Pemiscot county this year. This plot is on the farm owned by A.E. Bolton at Bragg City. The five banks in Pemiscot county have each contributed money to help defray expenses of raising the crop. These expenses include seed, fertilizer, weed control, cultivation, labor and other miscellaneous costs.

In 1963, Great Western Sugar Company answered the question about Pemiscot County soil being capable of growing sugar beets. The crop that year was sent to a refinery in Colorado to be tested for sugar content. The tests showed the sugar content to be adequate. After six years, Great Western has continued to show interest in this area as has the University of Missouri and many other business people.

Included in the study crops at the Delta Project in Portageville, University of Missouri Experiment Station, are plots of sugar beets and other vegetables suitable for this area.

Each plot is treated differently in the study in hopes of it someday being a major crop in this area.

Officials of Great Western continue to visit in the county and observe the progress the Sugar Beets are making. Many people still are optimistic and believe that sugar beets will be grown on a large scale in our county sometime in the near future. Another vegetable crop being grown in Pemiscot County is lima beans on the David Kelly farm at Steele. Kelly feels that he is learning something new about farming and has been quite successful with his lima beans crop.

Three Sentenced To Jail Terms

Three persons who previously pleaded guilty to separate charges were sentenced to jail terms by Judge William H. Billings in Dunklin county circuit court. Prosecuting attorney Charles H. Baker represented the state. Donald Ray Wright, 21, of Kennett, charged with forgery, was sentenced to four years in custody of the state department of corrections.

Wesley Crawford, 25, formerly of St. Louis, now of Blytheville, Ark., and Dave Crawford, 20, formerly of Matthews, now of Blytheville, both charged with felonious stealing, were placed in probation three years each in order to be confined in the Dunklin county jail all two Saturdays a month. Wesley Crawford will be confined on the first and third Saturdays and Dave Crawford on the second and fourth Saturdays until January 1, 1969 or until further order.

Two persons pleaded guilty and their cases were continued to July 22 for sentence investigation and report: Paul Eugene Wood, 31, of Kennett, charged with uttering and Donald Lee Rawling, 27, of Malden, charged with felonious stealing.

Family Farming License Revoked

Urged to Halt

Flight to Cities

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Family farmers could halt the flight from farm to city and stem the growth of corporate farming if they could compete with industry on even terms for the capital they need, the head of the U.S. Farmers Home Administration (FHA) said.

Howard Bertsch, addressing about 400 FHA employees from 18 states and Puerto Rico, said it seems clear to him that if the trend of past years continues the nation will wind up with tremendous urban crowding, company and corporate farms and very slim prospects for young farmers.

"The only reason the big farms continue to take over the agricultural empire is because they have easier access to the capital and the market place," Bertsch said.

ESCAPE EQUIPMENT LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) Nebraska's new executive airplane has some special emergency equipment a can opener.

Attached to the opener is a red tag reading "For emergency use only."

It all came about when State Aeronautics Director Howard Vest and state pilots Jon Auer and Bob Heilig went to Oklahoma City to pick up the plane. When the pilots climbed aboard for a routine check, they found themselves locked inside because of a malfunctioning door lock.

They had to use an emergency hatch to escape. The "special equipment" appeared unannounced a few days later.

We have asked the Legislature to take action in several areas. In the area of justice, I think that for too long judgeships have been mere political plums where appointments were payoffs, and judicial temperament and ability were secondary considerations.

Our Merit Selection Plan will end that and will insure that judges are picked on ability, irrespective of whether they are

Democrats or Republicans.

We have also asked the Legislature to take steps that will give union members control of their unions.

Strangely, union leaders and their allies, the liberal Democrats

- those who profess to be champions of the working man - are actively opposed to any such effort.

Our plan is simple. It would provide that on matters of policy union members would have the right to vote by secret ballot.

This does not seem unreasonable for any organization, especially for unions, since they are no longer made up solely of voluntary memberships and men must join unions in order to hold jobs.

At one time, of course,

the wage earner had the most to fear from his boss. But no longer.

Job security is so built in, it has become difficult to fire any except the most incompetent.

Now the worker is more betrodden to his shop steward and his union leader, and he knows this when he goes to vote on controversial union affairs.

It is indeed difficult for a man to vote his conscience or his convictions under the watchful eye of the union boss. Thus, union leaders can sometimes remain in power or establish power when the membership, in actuality, is opposed. A secret ballot would insure real democracy in our unions.

These are only some of the things we are doing in California.

And they are only a beginning.

In the days and months ahead

we will continue trying to implement in California the area, held by our founding fathers - that men are capable of self-government and are the better off for it.

Ann Landers

Silverware Disappears

Dear Ann Landers: I've been staring at this piece of paper for 15 minutes, not knowing how to put my problem into words. Well, here goes: Have you ever heard of counting the silverware when the company leaves? I never thought I'd have to do it, but I was wrong.

Several months ago we had dinner at the home of friends. I noticed Mrs. A. had at least five different patterns of sterling silver - service for two in one pattern, three in another pattern, and so on. She had service for four in the same pattern I have.

This I have in my bridge club and she has been here several times for lunch as well as for dinner parties. Recently I was preparing for a buffet supper for 12 when I discovered I was short 3 teaspoons, 2 dinner forks, 2 salad forks, a sugar shell and a cake server.

Have you any suggestions as to how I can hang on to the silver I have left? Don't tell me not to invite her anymore. She is a close friend and her husband and my husband are business associates. TARNISHED RELATIONSHIP

Dear Tarnished: The next time you are in the woman's home make a point of the fact that SOME of her silver is like yours. Ask, too, why she doesn't settle on one pattern instead of trying so many. Do it privately and be sure to convey the message that you are interested in her answers - not just making small talk. She'll get the message.

Dear Ann Landers: I had to write and comment on your advice to "Countdown Mother" - the woman who confesses she hated her daughter and treated her shabbily from the day the child was born.

Several women at our card club discussed that letter and most of them said they couldn't understand how a mother in her right mind could despise her own child. I remained silent although I was well qualified to speak since I was such a mother myself.

One day I slapped my child so hard she fell off the chair. She had asked for a second helping of mashed potatoes and wouldn't eat it. Her nose began to bleed and I could not stop it. I called the doctor.

When he came I was petrified because the child had lost so much blood. He asked me what happened. I told him the truth. That wonderful doctor urged me to get psychiatric help. He offered to arrange for an appointment at the community clinic.

After 16 months of therapy I am a new woman. I now understand why I hated that child. Furthermore, with understanding has come complete acceptance, if not genuine love. Please continue to tell all mothers who have hostile feelings toward their children to get professional help. It changed my life and saved my daughter.

COUNTDOWN MOTHER NUMBER TWO

Dear Mother: Thank you for your letter. It should give you encouragement to other mothers who suffer with the same problem. Knowing that there is help, that such a situation is not utterly hopeless, can be immensely supportive.

Confidential to Brought Up With A Closed Mind And Proud Of It: Your mind isn't "closed," my friend - it's nailed shut. I strongly suggest that you open it up occasionally. Something of value may drop in.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send her your booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The kindergarten program, which will open this fall, will consist of two similar sessions each day, first of which will run from school opening until noon and the second session from noon until the close of school. Each child will attend only one session. Those children whose parents desire, will be picked up by school buses and the school bus routes will probably determine as to whether or not a particular child will attend either morning or afternoon session. For example, the district will likely be divided into two attendance areas with those in one area attending the morning session and those in the other half attending in the afternoon.

The only exception to this will be rural kindergartners who will be picked up on the regular early morning bus run. Currently, they will attend the morning session and will be returned to their homes at noon.

This system will be adopted in order to prevent too many costly and repetitious bus routes. Likewise some parents will provide transportation for their child. The exact assignment and/or attendance areas has not been fully determined. This information will be given out prior to the opening of school.

Those parents who may not have enrolled their children for kindergarten are urged to do so as enrollment will likely close with the opening of school.

Work is now going forward on the field house after settlement of the steel strike which has held up construction on the roof structure for several weeks. The fabricators, they will attend the morning session and will be returned to their homes at noon.

the cooperative; board members Norbert Rolwing, Charleston; Estel Nelson, Wyatt; L. B. Mayer Dexter, Jim Spradling, Kewanee; Jess Bennett, Bloomfield; Tom Moore, Matthews, Charles Grojean, Chaffee, and Emil Neumeyer, Jackson.

Pigeon-Thomas of Memphis, informed us that probably they will start on-site construction about the 8th of July and that the roof should take about two months for erection. A very considerable amount of construction, which could not be done until the roof is completed, will remain and it is probable that completion on this job will be several months later than originally scheduled. If all goes well, an unlikely possibility in these times! The building should be ready for use around the 1st of January. This late completion will affect our physical education program, as we were counting on use of this building when physical education classes should be moved inside because of fall weather. Nonetheless, we believe it will be a building of which, not only can the community be proud, but which will add greatly to our educational program.

Progress on the elementary school on Ables Road is proceeding satisfactorily and present indications are that it will be ready for use when school opens. This building contains a number of unique features, including classrooms not of the conventional shape but designed to allow our methods in carrying out improved methods in handling and teaching children. The ideas for the changes were developed by a faculty committee, composed primarily of elementary teachers, who met at intervals for several months before their ideas were put into final shape.

The Council of Economic Advisers to the President, in their report to him stated, "Poverty breeds poverty. A poor individual or family has a high probability of staying poor. Low incomes carry with them high risks of illness; limitations on mobility; and limited access to education, information, and training. Poor parents cannot give their children the opportunities for better health and education needed to improve their lot. Lack of motivation, hope, and incentive is a more subtle but no less powerful barrier than lack of financial means. Thus the cruel legacy of poverty is passed from parents to children."

It is precisely these problems that our educational programs must somehow come to grips with. Doing so is extremely difficult but unless we find the answer through education, the handicaps of these people are very unlikely to be overcome.

We have several vacancies among these are several positions in mathematics and science. Three of the teachers to whom we have given contracts in these positions have been drafted.

It is our opinion that the present draft system is an unholy mess. In the first place, we don't think that anyone should be deferred from military service. All eligibles should be considered on the basis of lot or objective chance. But, if a system is to be devised such as the very unfair current method, at least it appears to us that it is as important to have teachers in the classrooms as it is to have students in college classrooms. Because if we don't teach them at the elementary and secondary levels, they certainly aren't going to become students in college classrooms.

Apropos of above, if you know of any, draft exempt science of mathematics teachers, please steer them our way. However, we would like competent ones.

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. (1 Corinthians 10:13)

PRAYER: We thank You, Lord, for the guidance You offer us daily. We thank You for Your help that keeps us from falling victim to temptations. Continue to give us wisdom to recognize temptations and power to resist them. Amen.

Soviet Mood on U.S. Relations Jittery

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Soviet Union's foreign minister says there is reason to believe that American-Soviet relations can be improved, but the Soviet press reflects anything but enthusiasm for such a development. In fact, it indicates that the Kremlin is apprehensive about better relations with the United States.

Like an elephant among mice, the Soviet leadership seems to be acting the role of a frightened giant. The case of jitters displayed by commentaries in the press suggest that Kremlin worries about Western "bridgebuilding" and about developments in Communist-ruled Eastern States and is suspicious of Europe can prove a major obstacle to better East-West relations and a more peaceful world.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, addressing the Soviet Parliament, reported his government ready to exchange opinions with the Americans on curtailment of offensive and defensive rocket systems.

But Gromyko also insisted that the United States is to blame for cool relations, that it must "stop trying to turn the world inside out." The implication was that any real detente would be impossible until the Americans are out of Vietnam.

The tone of the Soviet press in recent days has, indeed, indicated that the Soviet leadership is far from in the mood for any significant cooperation with the United States and is suspicious of American moves in that direction. Press treatment of recent events indicates that Kremlin worries inhibit cooperation.

House Begins Hearing Case Against Hasler

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House of Representatives resolved itself into a committee of the whole today to decide whether the evidence gathered by its special committee warranted articles of impeachment against St. Louis County Circuit Judge John D. Hasler of Ladue.

Judge Hasler, as a guest, sat on the sidelines with his attorney, Bertram Elam of Webster Groves.

Elam said they came just to listen and might decide later what course of action to take in the seldom used impeachment procedure.

He protested that the letter inviting Judge Hasler said he could appear as a witness if he liked but if he did so he would subject himself to possible cross-examination from the House floor.

The letter also said that "neither you nor your counsel will, as a matter of right, be permitted to cross-examine the witnesses who testify. Every effort will be made, however, to elicit all relevant information from each witness."

The chief witness is Mrs. Jean Shelby of Poplar Bluff, the defendant in a divorce case in which Judge Hasler admitted he had become involved even though it was scheduled for his court. He later withdrew from the case and it is still pending in another division of the St. Louis Circuit Court.

Judge Hasler also has been indicted by a St. Louis County Circuit Court jury for oppression in office because of his actions in the Shelby divorce suit. Some motions of that case will be heard Monday before a special

Police Recover Stolen Vehicle

A car reported stolen at 7:58 a.m. today was recovered less than a half hour later by Sikeston police officer Hiram Gardner Jr.

Mrs. Charles Watson, 600 Taylor, reported she left the keys in her car when she went into the C & M Wholesale Meat Co., 319 West Malone, this morning to purchase meat.

She told police she heard tires squeal and looked outside fearing her car was about to be struck by another vehicle. Her car was gone when she looked, she told police.

Gardner investigated and got a description of the car, which he found parked in the 200 block of Trotter at 8:26 a.m.

The keys were not in the car when it was found and a pair of sunglasses were missing, police reported.

In other activity, two juvenile boys from Morehouse have been arrested and transferred to the authority of juvenile officer Fred Glover by Sikeston police in connection with vandalism Tuesday night or early Wednesday in the 500 block of Greer.

Sikeston police said the two youths admitted painting several buildings with spray paint.

Argentry Colin Carr, 41, 1408 Usage St., was arrested at 5:54 p.m. Wednesday and charged with driving while intoxicated and investigation of no operation's license. He was arrested in the 200 block of Westgate.

Edward Boyd, Mounds, Ill., a construction worker on the Sikeston High School field house, reported to police Monday that a Browning automatic revolver was stolen from the glove compartment of his pickup truck while it was parked at the school.

Antipater of Sidon is thought to have listed the seven wonders of the ancient world about 100 B.C.
